BIG DIRIGIBLE SOARING OVER ATLANTIC

TEXAS VOTING SHOWS SOLID SOUTH INTACT

AL SMITT - HOOVER SPLIT NOT IN EVIDENCE

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1930, by the Escanaba Press)

Washington, July 29.—If any proof were needed that the 1928 election was not the beginning of a break-up of the solid South politically but was an accident of personalities rather than a party upheaval it is to be found in the results of the Texas primary.

The lone star state like Virginia and North Carolina has declined to allow the pro-Smith and anti-Smith cleavage to become permanent and those who supported Herbert Hoover have not been permitted to attain the ascendency in Democratic political affairs in these states which cast their electoral ballot for the Republicans nearly two years ago.

1928 Group Out.

While a run-off in the primary will be necessary as between Ross Sterling and Mrs. James E. Ferguson all the other candidates who were involved in the issues of the 1928 campaign were eliminated from consideration. Inasmuch as the total vote for the eleven candidates was approximately six hundred thousand and Mrs. Ferguson received about a hundred and seventy-nine thousand votes it is still possible in the run-off primary for her to be defeated by an overwhelming vote.

National interest however centers in the fact that Thomas B. Love, former Wilson man and state senator, who led the fight against Al Smith and deserted his party to vote for Hoover, received only about sixty thousand votes and ran fourth in the race with James Young who was the leading adherent to Al Smith, running less than a thousand votes behind almost tying for fourth place with Mr. Love.

Backs Up Drys.

This shows conclusively that the voters in Texas have no intention of transforming the Democratic party into a Republican organization and would seem to indicate that if the next Democratic presidential nominee is not too extreme on the wet side he will have no difficulty in capturing the electoral vote in the state. Texas incidentally in the same primary this year gave Senator Morris Sheppard, a leader of the drys and co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment, a clear majority over its two opponents thus assuring his re-nomination and election. One of his opponents, Robert L. Henry, campaigned on what was considered a wet platform. This would seem to indicate that Texas is not ready to subscribe to the viewpoint of New Jersey which recently gave Mr. Morrow an overwhelming victory.

It was stated at the time by leading drys that the Morrow primary was not significant since it was known that New Jersey was wet and it was argued that there would be time enough to talk about a change in sentiment

MacDonald Admits Perjury in Mooney Trial

Sand Dredge Sinks With Crew of 14

Erie, Pa., July 29 (AP)—The sand dredge George J. Whelan and 14 members of its crew lay in Lake Erie off Dunkirk, N. Y., tonight. Six surivivors and the body of another of the crew were here as federal authorities prepared for investigation of the accident that sank the craft in approximately 190 feet of water.

In the early hours this morning, the Steamer Amasa Stone came into port here with the survivors and the first definite word of the wreck. In the black night, the Whelan plunged over and floated bottom up for half an hour with several of the crew clinging to it. The vessel sank and only six men were left to be picked up later by the Stone.

CONSERVATIVES BACK IN POWER

B. M. Bennett, Political Veteran, Swept Into Helm in Canada

Ottawa, July 29 (AP)—A smashing, dominion-wide victory at yesterday's polls has returned the Conservative party to power in Canada for the first time since the World war, and has placed R. B. Bennet, sixty year old Calgary bachelor and political veteran, at the helm of state as premier-elect.

Tonight, with three house of commons seats still in doubt out of two hundred and forty-five, the Conservatives had won 137 seats, the Liberals 85, the United Farmers ten, the Liberal Progressives and the Laborites three apiece, and the Progressives and the Independents two each.

Even if the opposition were to win all the contests still undetermined, the Conservative government, replacing the nine year regime of the Liberals and Prime Minister MacKenzie King, is sure of out-and-out control of the dominion parliament.

The Conservative majority is large enough to match the combined strength of all opposing parties and to leave a margin of 28 votes.

Prohibition Puzzle Will Be Discussed In Confab Today

Washington, July 29 (AP)—The knotty problems of prohibition enforcement will be heaped upon a conference table tomorrow and analyzed and discussed by the men directly responsible for their solution.

At the call of Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, the twelve regional administrators in charge of enforcement in the field, will gather here to settle details of policy.

President Hoover late today went over the program of the session with Woodcock, Attorney General Mitchell, and Assistant Attorney General G. Aaron Youngquist. The three were called to the White House by Mr. Hoover and spent more than an hour in consultation with him.

Tomorrow's meeting will be the first gathering of the directing heads of prohibition enforcement since the administration of the dry laws was transferred from the treasury to the justice department.

Caution Chinese Gov't Against Loss Of American Life

Washington, July 29 (AP)—The state department tonight announced the Nanking government had been cautioned against the loss of American life or property at Taian, Shantung, China, and that should such loss occur, "the American government reserves all rights in the matter."

At the same it was reported by official sources that the U. S. S. Palos which had been dispatched to remove Americans from Changsha had departed from that place because it could not protect property in view of the "overwhelming number of communists."

Two American male missionaries were left behind it was said officially.

It was reported further that Father Braiman of the Italian mission was captured by bandits today when he made a last minute effort to leave the city after previously refusing to depart.

The U. S. S. Palos, was reported struck once by rifle fire. Women children and others were transferred to the British ship Aphis for the sake of greater comfort.

SAYS HE WAS INDUCED TO DO SO BY FICKERT

SUPREME COURT OF CALIFORNIA IS TRIBUNAL

San Francisco, July 29 (AP)—John MacDonald, 50 year old Baltimore waiter, today told the California supreme court he lied in in 1916 when he testified Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings were to blame for the bomb explosion which killed ten and wounded forty participants in a preparedness parade here.

Serving Life Terms

MacDonald was brought from Baltimore by persons interested in freeing Mooney and Billings, serving life terms in San Quentin and Folsom prisons for the bombing. Billings had previously been convicted of a felony.

Under California law a person twice convicted cannot petition the governor for a pardon without a recommendation from the state supreme court. Such a recommendation recently was denied Billings. As a result Governor C. C. Young announced he would pardon neither Billings nor Mooney, saying evidence before the court and before the advisory pardon board indicated both were guilty.

Then came MacDonald.

Important Witness

Bent and gray, and walking with a cane the little waiter whose testimony played such an important part in the trials came out of the past "to ease his conscience" and sat before a tribunal unprecedented in California. Never before had the state supreme court sat unofficially to hear evidence in a felony case.

MacDonald sat surrounded by the justices and lawyers the latter representing Mooney and Billings as well as himself. Among them was Frank P. Walsh, eminen eastern criminal lawyer who has fought for Mooney's freedom continually since his conviction.

MacDonald looked at these judges and lawyers and at forty newspaper men and several police officers and admitted he had lied four times. This he did when Justice Preston of the court asked if he hadn't told five different stories at five different times about the case. MacDonald answered he had.

"How is the court to know which one to believe?" Justice Preston asked.

"Only by your own judgement," replied MacDonald.

The witness recently made an affidavit in which he said he was "prompted" by authorities here to identify Mooney and Billings as the men who placed the bomb at Market and Steuart streets in July 1916.

Using this affidavit as the basis of questioning the court asked MacDonald if he gave false testimony at the time of the bombing. He said he did and he was "induced" to do so by Charles Fickert, then district attorney and who was one of the lawyers attending the hearing today.

"A whole pack of lies was packed into my head," MacDonald said, referring to his "inducement" by Fickert. Both Fickert and Captain Charles Goff of the police department, then a sergeant in charge of the investigation have denied they prompted MacDonald. They said he appeared voluntarily and identified Mooney and Billings.

Britain Ratifies London Naval Pact

London, July 29 (AP)—The British parliament in effect ratified the London naval treaty today when a bill designed to support its terms passed through all its stages in the house of lords.

Today's progress of the measure left nothing more to be done so far as Great Britain is concerned until the final implements of ratification are exchanged formally between the signatories to the treaty excepting for King George to give the royal assent to the bill, which he will do before the end of the week.

The measure was purely technical in its form, containing the necessary legislation to cancel Britain's commitments under the Washington treaty, where such cancellation was required to give effect to the new treaty.

The house of lords passed the bill today without taking a vote and with the minimum of debate.

Baby Mixup May Cause Probe Of Maternity Wards

Chicago, July 29 (AP)—An investigation of maternity ward practices in all hospitals of Chicago stood as a possibility tonight as an outgrowth of the Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup.

Alderman Thomas J. Bowler introduced a resolution in the city council asking for such an inquiry as the result of the confused identity of two babies born June 30 at Englewood hospital to Mrs. Charles Bamberger and to Mrs. William Watkins.

The case produced what is thought to be a legal departure today when a suit was filed by Mrs. Grace Dibrell, clubwoman, as "best friend" of the infant brought home by Mrs. Watkins, calling upon the court to decide whether the child is a Watkins or a Bamberger. The Englewood hospital, the Watkins and the Bambergers are made defendants. No money is asked, the suit being solely to establish identity. A suit against the hospital for $100,000 for "lost identity" has been prepared, according to Barratt O'Hara, attorney for the Watkins, but has not been filed, pending outcome of the other action.

Today's complaint asks that the court appoint a guardian for both babies.

Commission to Probe Unemployment Set Up By President Hoover

Washington, July 29. (AP)—President Hoover paused today in announcing the creation of a new fact-finding commission to defend the practice and promise that he would name other such groups.

Look for Relief.

His new commission was set up to determine a more stable basis for unemployment relief. It will be composed of representatives of labor, industries, research organizations and the government and will revise existing methods of collecting unemployment statistics and "establish the method of cooperation between government departments and business."

In defending the policy of creating such groups, the president presented statistics to show that the 17 he had set up in as many months fell below the average named by the various chief executives since President Roosevelt took over the post.

President Harding with 44 commissions for his 29 months in the White House and President Taft with 63 for his 48 months ranked next in the number of commissions appointed. President Roosevelt created 107 commissions, President Coolidge 118 and President Wilson 160.

"As we need the best brains of the country to assist in government and in the coordination of public efforts," Mr. Hoover said, "I shall appoint others (commissions). The willingness of our people of specialized knowledge to give such voluntary service as this requires is one of the most gratifying qualities of citizenship."

Statistics Needed.

In a statement announcing the step, Mr. Hoover said the need for "more systematic information," on unemployment has been generally endorsed by business and labor organizations for many years. Congress, he added, took a step in the right direction at the last session by passing a bill providing for monthly publication by the government of changes in employment.

Adequate statistics, Mr. Hoover said, serve not only as a "barometer of business, but the necessary information as to measures which need to be taken by local agencies as well as the government in any constructive relief of unemployment."

Dope Smuggling Along Atlantic Given Hard Blow, Rings Broken Up

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Descending on huge narcotic rings in New York, Norfolk, Va., and Washington, agents of the newly reorganized narcotics division of the treasury made twenty arrests over the week-end and captured persons whom they said were the leaders of five narcotic smuggling gangs.

Seize Morphine

At the same time the raiders seized large quantities of morphine and heroin and believed they had broken up smuggling operations that brought millions of dollars worth of narcotics into this country each year from Turkey. The leader of one gang it was announced was arrested in his office in the Woolworth building in New York as he was preparing a quantity or morphine for shipment to San Francisco.

Announcement of the raids, which started Saturday and ended last night, was made today by Harry J. Anslinger, acting director of the narcotic division. He said agents had arrested the ring leaders of five gangs and had captured all the principals in the narcotic smuggling schemes along the Atlantic coast.

The arrests were brought about by the under cover work of three agents who worked their way into the confidence of the narcotic dealers and were taken in as members of the gang. It required two months for the agents under the direction of J. A. Manning, narcotic agent in charge in New York, J. B. Greeson, narcotic agent in charge in Washington and R. A. Sanders, detective of the metropolitan force of Washington to trace the narcotics from their source in Turkey to the gangs headquarters in this country.

Sent Camouflaged

They found the narcotics were sent camouflaged as other merchandise to this country. Their work resulted in the seizure of 4,000 ounces of morphine on the Black Diamond liner, Inko, last Saturday. It had been shipped as electrical machinery.

The outstanding smuggler, Anslinger said, was Tony Lapinto, son of an Italian marquis, who was arrested at his home on Long Island. While being taken to the district attorney's office in New York, members of his gang sought to rescue him, but guns in the hands of the agents held off his aides.

All of the narcotic smugglers were arraigned before United States commissioners and held under heavy bond for trial on charges of violating the narcotic laws.

Youth Gets Fifty Years for Murder

Ida Grove, Iowa, July 29 (AP)—Lester Mohr, 14, confessed slayer of his mother, Mrs. Gus Mohr, was sentenced today to fifty years imprisonment.

Judge P. J. Klinker said that because of the youth's age, he would not impose a life term.

The boy, who pleaded guilty, said he had been drinking "spiked" beer and had gone home where he quarreled with his mother over some work.

When his mother slapped him, the boy testified, he beat her with bricks, then shot and killed her.

Lansing, Mich., July 29. (AP)—The quadruplet sight-seeing business is a new enterprise here. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Morlok, parents of Lansing's only quadruplets, announced today that a 25-cent charge will be made to see the four baby girls at their home.

BANK ROBBERS GET $15,000

Bandits Kidnap Cashier and Force Him to Open Safe in Hillman

Hillman, Mich., July 29 (AP)—Cash and negotiable securities amounting to $15,000 were stolen from the Montmorency County Savings bank here at 8:25 a. m., today by two robbers who kidnaped Cashier William Niergarth in front of his home and forced him to open the bank's vault.

A posse headed by state police and sheriff's officers and made up of about 200 farmers was searching the woods and highways east of the town tonight in hopes of capturing the robbers.

The robbers kidnaped Niergarth as he drove from his farm home three miles from Hillman on his way to work. They forced the banker to accompany them in their car to the bank and open the vault. While the robbery was in progress William Studt, a farmer, entered the bank. The robbers locked him and Niergarth in the vault and escaped in a small coupe which was found abandoned a mile and a half east of here two hours later.

Kathleen Bushey an employe of the bank, was summoned to work the combination on the vault and release the men. Niergarth was on the verge of collapse when freed.

Ogden, Utah, July 29 (AP)—Lee Gehlbach of Little Rock, Ark., held a three hour lead over Lowell Bayless, Cleveland, in the Detroit-Los Angeles all American air derby tonight when nine of the eleven contestants had arrived at the Ogden airport.

Gehlbach's total elapsed time was 31:18:17, compared with Bayless' total of 34:17:41. The two leaders were second and third, respectively, into tonight's control point. Herman Hamer, Chicag, led the baby airplanes here from Los Angeles where they took off this morning, and won the lap prize of $1,000 offered by the Ogden chamber of commerce for the best time between the two cities.

OFFICERS WANT LETTER PASSER

Unidentified Italian Is Believed to Be Key Man in Buckley Case

Detroit, July 29. (AP)—An unidentified Italian who is said to have passed a small manila envelope to Jerry Buckley, radio announcer, two hours before he was slain by gunmen, today claimed the attention of detectives working on the case.

Hunt for Motive.

Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox has insisted that the radio announcer's killers are known. Detectives, however, have been unable to establish a motive for the slaying.

"We are bending every effort to find the slayers," Wilcox said. "The establishing of a motive is of secondary importance."

The note passing incident was revealed today. Wilcox said that last Tuesday night when Buckley was leaving the city hall after having broadcast the returns of the election which recalled Mayor Charles Bowles, a man, apparently an Italian, slipped a folded manila envelope into the announcer's hand.

Wilcox said this information was brought to him by a man who witnessed the incident and that several men saw the note passer. Buckley, according to the commissioner's informant, was angered at the incident and asked the note passer: "Don't you know any better than to come here to see me? I'll see you later." The mysterious note has not yet been found.

Wilcox said an attempt would be made by the witnesses of this incident to identify suspects arrested as the man who passed the note.

The commissioner denied earlier reports that detectives had ben sent to other cities in search of the announcer's slayers.

Efforts to connect the five men arrested in Grosse Pointe Sunday with the Buckley case have failed, Wilcox said. These men are held in connection with several other recent slayings, however, he said.

Favor Purchase of Porcupine Mts. As A National Park

Marquette, July 29—(Special)—Purchase of the Porcupine Mountains as a National park was favored at a meeting of state conservation commission and executive committee of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau at the Northland hotel here tonight.

The Porcupine Mountains has been regarded as a state park for several years but the two groups were of the opinion that the expense in purchasing the mountains should be borne by the national government. There are 100,000 acres of virgin timber on the mountain. Should federal government feel that it could not purchase it, it was suggested that perhaps the state could take over a portion of it.

The conservation commissioners will go to Crystal Falls Wednesday for their regular monthly meeting. Conferences are also scheduled for Iron Mountain and Escanaba.

Seek to Remove Ban on Pulpwood

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Efforts to have the treasury set aside its order prohibiting importation of pulpwood from Russia or delay its enforcement for 90 days were made by representatives of ship owners, ship charterers, paper manufacturers and a labor organization.

At the conclusion, Lowman said he would consider the protests carefully and make his decision within two days.

R-100 DRONES AWAY, POINTED FOR MONTREAL

POSITION RADIOED AT REGULAR INTERVALS

BULLETIN.

London, July 30—(Wednesday)—(AP)—The master of the steamship Montclare radioed The Associated Press this morning that at 3:17 a. m. he had given the Canada-bound dirigible R-100 his position as 52:16 north latitude and 18:26 west longitude, or about 387 miles west of the southern tip of Ireland. He said the British dirigible was bearing from his 285 true.

London, July 29. (AP)—Great Britain's R-100, the biggest dirigible, tonight was well out over the Atlantic ocean on her way to Montreal, Canada.

With her six Rolls-Royce engines smoothly turning out a speed of sixty miles per hour, she reported her position at 7 p. m. British Summer Time (1 p. m. E. S. T.) as 200 miles west of the Irish coast.

Passes over Scotland.

Since leaving her mooring mast at Cardington at 3:45 a. m. the pride of Britain's dirigibles had described an arc over northern Ireland, quitting the English coast at Liverpool, she passed over the Isle of Man and through the Mull of Kintyre, the narrow channel separating Ulster and Scotland.

Thence flying over Rathlin Island, she circled over Malin Head, Ulster and headed southwesterly along the general line of the ship lane from Glasgow to Quebec. At 4:18 p. m., the Valentia wireless station, Ireland, received a radio giving her position as 205 miles west of Lain Head.

On board the big airship, her messages said, passengers and crew had settled down to the normal routine of airship life, which they will pursue, barring accidents, until they arrive late Thursday or early Friday morning at St. Hubert airport, Montreal.

"Nothing of interest to report, everyone now settled down to normal routine, nebulous clouds 1,800 feet and good visibility, flying at 2,100 feet. Position 200 miles west of the west coast of Ireland."

Shifting Winds.

Periodic broadcasts from her well-equipped wireless sets to the air ministry kept Great Britain informed of the first day's progress. She was constantly in communication with ships and picked up frequent weather reports.

As she headed toward the open sea, the winds facing them unexpectedly shifted, and from having been favorable when she started became adverse, this change produced a deviation in her intended course. Instead of heading north from the Irish Sea to the Hebridges, the airship cut much closer to northern Ulster.

Meteorological data picked up from passing ships proved to be of great value in determining her course. In general her route remains that of the great circle across the Atlantic. Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, her commander probably will keep his preferred course, heading to a point south of Cape Farewell, Greenland, then crossing Labrador and following the St. Lawrence river to Montreal.

However, the choice has been left entirely to his descretion and will depend on weather conditions.

Apart from adverse winds, the R-100 met fair weather, a few rainy patches, with squalls blowing from Argyle, greeted her while passing out from the Irish Sea, but once over the ocean, the weather was fine and cold.

Jackson Patrolman Pleads Guilty In Mail Fraud Trial

Detroit, July 29 (AP)—The trial of Fred C. Traynor, former Jackson postal employe, and Carl Callup, former Jackson patrolman, on charges of tampering with the mails came to an abrupt end in federal court today when one defendant pleaded guilty and the charge against the other was nolle prossed.

In the midst of cross-examination by George Fitzgerald, assistant district attorney, Gallup asked for a conference with his attorneys, O. L. Smith and Leonard Coyne. After the conference he pleaded guilty and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

Federal Judges Charles C. Simons sentenced Gallup to 18 months in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, on motion of Fitzgerald the case against Traynor was nolle prossed.

Bonuses are Cause For Argument In Steel Merger Tilt

Youngstown, O., July 29 (AP)—Further probe into bonuses paid to officials by the Bethlehem Steel corporation was indicated by attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests, who are seeking to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with Bethlehem.

The attorneys said they will attempt to get into the record of the suit the salary paid to Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem chairman, and the bonuses paid to several lesser officials. President Eugene G. Grace of Bethlehem testified last week he received a salary of $12,000 and bonus of $1,623,753 in 1929. The bonuses of six vice presidents, ranging from $110,077 to $375,784 were revealed at the same time.

Schwab, it was brought out, apportions the bonuses according to the earnings. He does not himself receive a bonus, but the Eaton attorneys said they will ask the Bethlehem corporation to volunteer information on his salary.

Mrs. Custer, now 81 years old, was a recent visitor at the home of her grandson here and took her on the automobile trip through western Michigan. Her father was the first man to live in a house in what is now Cedar Springs in Kent county, and she was brought from Elyria, Ohio, when one year old to live in a log cabin at the Michigan village. TEXAS VOTING SHOWS SOLID SOUTH INTACT with respect to prohibition when some dry state changed over to the wet side. Texas has run true to form by returning to the United States senate an ardent dry by a vote of nearly three to one over his nearest opponent—which compares favorably with the proposition by which Mr. Morrow achieved his triumph in New Jersey.

The Texas result therefore will have the paradoxical result of vindicating the contentions of the Al Smith group of the Democratic national leaders on the one hand who contended that the state would return to the party fold and bolstering up the argument of the drys that the dry states are still dry and the wet states are still wet.

Spend Billion On Navy, Moffet Says

Bay City Mich., July 29 (AP)—The expenditure of nearly a billion dollars on the navy was urged as a good "investment" here tonight in a speech by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics, at services dedicating a new airport.

Admiral Moffett dedicated the airport to the memory of James Clements, the first American aviator killed overseas.

"The cost of building to the London treaty navy," he said, "has been estimated by the general board to be $900,000,000 to be expended over a period of six years, while the expenditure by the veterans bureau for veterans of the last war is more than $500,000,000 annually.

"I know of no better investment for the United States— the expenditure of $990,000,000 for building to the treaty navy. By doing so we will maintain our self respect and prestige as a nation, our force for peace, be able to prevent another war, the cost of which will be billions instead of millions.

"Had we had a navy commensurate with our population and resources as a nation in 1914, there would have been no war."

Broker and Pilot Burn to Death As Airplane Crashes

Madison, Wis., July 29 (AP)—A wealthy Los Angeles broker and his pilot were burned to death this afternoon when a new biplane crashed into a marsh near the Madison airport and burst into flames.

Charles E. Anderton, Jr., 39, the broker, who had been living temporarily in Chicago, took off with his pilot, George A. Morgan, 25, St. Paul, early this afternoon enroute to Lacrosse Wis. and St. Paul. Airport officials said the plane left the ground after a short run and started to climb suddenly it nosed downward and fell into the marsh half a mile from the field. The plane burst into flames as it struck and the men died strapped in the flaming pyre.

Spectators said one of the pair attempted to free himself but slumped in his seat as flames reached him. Firemen recovered the bodies which were burned almost beyond recognition.

INJURIES FATAL TO GROOS MAN

Alfred Fallman Passes Away at Hospital Here Last Night

Injuries received when a cable on which he was working broke at the dam at Boney Falls about a week ago proved fatal last evening to Alfred Fallman, 48, of Groos. He was a resident of Groos for the past 15 years. Twelve years previous to that he lived in Wells.

While working in the employ of the Escanaba Paper company at the Boney Falls dam, Fallman suffered a triple fracture of the pelvic bone and internal injuries when a cable broke. Since that time he has been in a local hospital with little hope held for his recovery. He passed away at 8:45 last evening.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Glen, at home, and nine daughters, Mrs. William Wilson, Junior, Linella, Inez, Ferne, Lorraine, Marian, Marcella, Arlene, and Jermaine. Two brothers, Gust, of Peshtigo, and Edward, of Butte, Montana, and two sisters, Mrs. Michael Lacourt, Beloit, and Mrs. Rudolph Redlick, of Coleman, Wisconsin, also survive.

The body was taken to the Anderson Funeral Home. No funeral arrangements have been made.

Mrs. Mary Gaffney Called by Death

Mrs. Mary Gaffney, 73, passed away at the home of A. J. D'Amour, 813 Fourth Ave., South, at 9:45 o'clock last evening due to the complications of old age. She was one of the pioneer residents of Escanaba.

She is survived only by her daughter, Mrs. A. J. D'Amour, and two grandchildren, Mae and Francis. No funeral arrangements have been made.

George II was the last English king to take an active part in a military campaign.

Rev. Fr. Mockler Is Taking Needed Rest

Rev. Fr. John Mockler, pastor of St. Patrick's church is taking a much needed rest at his home here. Father Mockler who had been seriously ill during the winter and early spring, was in a very run down condition and his physician advised a complete rest cure.

He spends a great deal of his time on the sleeping porch at the rectory and is gaining in strength. Rev. Fr. Francis Murphy of Milwaukee, pastor of St. John's Cathedral is looking after the affairs of the parish and is assisted at services by Rev. Fr. Schrieber, chaplain at St. Francis hospital.

Father Mockler deemed it advisable to take the rest cure in his own home, in order to be here in case of any emergency calls in the parish. All parish work, sick calls, and so forth, are in charge of Father Murphy, thereby giving the pastor an opportunity to recover entirely from his illness.

FIRES RACE IN LUCE COUNTY

Newberry, July 29 (Special)—Local fire wardens have been busy since Sunday looking after small fires which started for the most part from careless smokers through the berry woods and along trout streams. Wardens Beach and Mattson spent Monday at "Hoppy Hollow" near the old Barrett Camps fighting a fire which started in the raspberries there. Only about a quarter of an acre was burned and the fire was out by nightfall. However Mattson is out there again today to see that all is safe.

A small fire is still burning in the turf along the Fox river between Germfask and Seney caused by a fisherman's smoking. Warden Robert Kubond is looking after that one which is well in hand but difficult to completely subdue. The frequent rain is making it easier for the wardens to keep these many small fires well under control.

THOSE MIXED BABIES

MR. and Mrs. Bamberger and Mr. and Mrs. Watkins of Chicago wish that there was some way that parents could tell their own children.

They can't do it. And all the king's horses and all the king's men aren't having one-half the luck in helping them solve this baby mixup that King Solomon had when he tried to divide one baby between two women.

Physicians, an ophtholomogist, an obstetrician, an athropologist, a psychiatrist and some more scientists with names just as long have been in conclave with the two children, trying to decide. Even they can't agree.

You will recall that the mixup started when the Watkins family discovered a piece of adhesive tape bearing the name of Bamberger on the body of the baby whom they had brought home from the hospital. They agreed that the infant they had was a very nice child. Hadn't it almost been theirs? But they preferred to rear their own.

And the hospital thought that maybe the tapes had been mixed.

It really should be simple. There's a perfectly healthy, round, contented baby for each family. The two families could draw lots and probably be just as far ahead as they are now. Since the children can't tell their own names, and will speak the ones chosen for them, anyway, when they do, they can't help. Nobody would ever know the difference if the wrong lots were drawn. Nobody, not, even the parents.

The child which was taken by the Bambergers seems to be claimed by each set of parents regardless of the diversified advice of the sages.

But both families can't have it. Somebody has to accept the other one, and there is sufficient proof that it is bone of the bone and flesh of the flesh of one or the other set of parents.

If it were merely the care of the infant—seeing that it had the proper amount of spinach and orange juice and slept and drank its milk at the regular hours—the problem wouldn't be so important.

But one or the other of the two babies may develop into a prodigy. He may even be president. And so long as there is an uncertainty of parentage, and a belief in heredity, the parents that did not get him would ponder if, perhaps, it wasn't their son who was bringing honor to another family.

Then, too, the children might grow to look like their parents and if they weren't in the right families there would be much disturbance if one father saw the other father walking along the street with a boy who was his own counterpart. A trade at that time might be surer but it would be embarrassing.

Nothing in life is so divinely close to a miracle as the birth of a little child, and the realization of its parents that there is something of themselves in this new life. Viewed in that light, the confused attempts to decide to whom the two babies belong assumes an air of tragedy. Each family has a right to its own child, and to the absolute, irrevocable proof that it has its own.

AIDS MOTORISTS

MOTORISTS are voicing their appreciation of the efforts of the state highway department in marking off center lines on all macadam roads the full length of the way.

Several years ago, the highway department started the marking of a black line in the center of concrete pavements, and a yellow stripe in the center of macadam roads at curves and hills, where the vision is limited to 500 feet or less.

This year, however, the program has been broadened. White lacquer is used to mark a center line throughout the macadam system, and this work has done much to promote traffic safety and make driving less strenuous for the motorist.

At night, the white line is clearly discernible. When an approaching automobile has strong headlights, the driver is not bothered by the glare for he merely drives carefully on his side of the road. So many accidents have been caused on highways because of cars being crowded off the pavement, and it is certain that the road marking system will alleviate much of this trouble. Motorists do not have to worry about how close they are to the ditch when they have the center line to guide them.

THE BEST TIME

THE "good old days," which are so regarded because we have conveniently — though perhaps, unconsciously—trained our memories to recall only the good things and forget the bad, weren't as good as they are popularly supposed to have been.

You can take this from Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, dean of the supreme court of the United States, who, in his 90th year, finds the complex life of 1930 richer and more interesting than that of 1865 when, already a lieutenant-colonel at 23, he left the Union army to pursue a career at law. The venerable jurist gives his opinions in the current issue of the Golden Book magazine.

"When it is said we are too much occupied with the means of living to live, I answer that the chief worth of civilization is that it makes the means of living more complex, that it calls for great and combined intellectual efforts instead of simple, un-co-ordinated ones, in order that the crowd may be fed and clothed and housed and moved from place to place . . Because more complex and intense intellectual effort means a fuller and richer life. They mean more life . . . Lift is an end in itself, and the only question of its being worth living is whether you have enough of it."

Though our own experience with life is many, many years less than that of Justice Holmes, we believe as he believes. Our mode of living today calls for greater effort than that of a generation back, but we are compensated with richer and fuller lives. We enjoy more conveniences, comforts, pleasures and opportunities than our grandfathers ever thought possible. True, life is faster, competition is keener; but the compensations therefore are abundant.

Regardless of those who pine for "the good old days," we think there has never been a better time to live than the present. And, in addition, we look to the future for improvement. Our children may pay a greater price for their lives, but the compensation will be commensurate with the increase.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

THE stories of dogs who lay shivering in the rain, or crying plaintively under the stars, hugging the slim green mound which held one whom they idolized, took up a good many pages in the old school reading books. Children read them, learning not only the pronunciation of words, but the meaning of loyalty. And dogs are really loyal—more than one has given his life for his master.

We wonder if the man in a distant city who prepared a terrible punishment for a dog the other day didn't know this.

Apparently he didn't. He kept on, throwing more and more dirt into a hole where he had placed the little animal. He packed it harder and harder, until finally the dog was covered, and he couldn't see the eyes. Just the nose was left above the ground.

Then the man went away.

Neighbors, hearing the dog's cries, came found the nose, and dug the animal out.

The dog had been digging holes in his yard, the owner explained. He had cured other puppies of this habit by burying them in the ground for a time, noses exposed so they could breathe. He was merely trying the same method of punishment and training with this puppy.

It is a little hard to realize that there are people in the world who still viciously inflict suffering on animals. But occasionally we have to wonder if there aren't some people who might profit a little by a few hours of . . . say, burial with merely their noses exposed

HENRY FORD'S BIRTH

On July 30, 1863, Henry Ford, American manufacturer, was born at Greenfield, Mich., the son of a farmer.

He began early to develop an interest in mechanics but when he finished his education at the district schools his father put him to work on the farm. After three years of this Henry went to Detroit to work for $2.50 a week in a machine shop. Constantly working with engines, Ford later was made an engineer and machinist with the Detroit Edison company. After hours he worked on the building of a gasoline motor car. When it was developed he left the electric company and went into business for himself.

In 1903 he organized and became president of the Ford Motor company, which has become the largest automobile manufacturing establishment in the world, and the third largest industry in the United States. In 1926 the company has assets of about $1,000,000,000 and has in its employ some 200,000 people directly and an equal number indirectly.

Ford was a pronounced pacifist before the war and sought by a peace mission to bring the warring nations into conference. Convinced his errand was hopeless, however, he returned home.

DANCING JUDITH

(By NEA Service) By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

CHAPTER XLII

"I simply cannot stand it any longer," said Judy. "I shall have to go to the police!"

She sat in the Cafe Turc, with a dozen or so of her men friends about her. It was a little less than a week after Bruce Gideon's visit. Every day she was growing stronger, though she put on no flesh and still had to use two sticks.

She looked around the table, took up her coffee spoon, and beat it on her saucer. Dan, the Italian waiter, came running up, as he did to her lightest word.

"No, Dan," she said, "I don't want anything. The coffee's lovely, but I can't drink any more, or I shan't sleep. I was talking about Miss Morley and Mr. Dumont." She looked around the table again. "Is it possible that nobody has heard from Bastien?"

"Not a line—not a word—not a breath!" came in a chorus from the assembled artists.

"I hear that both of their places are locked up!" cried Judy. "I'm frightened. There has been such a lot of queer stories lately in the papers."

"Do you mean to say Steyne hasn't heard from Chummy?" Michael Stone asked.

"No—not a word."

Judy just said that, and no more. Her mouth closed like a little trap. Steyne had not been seen at the Cafe Turc for some time.

"It must be just a coincidence," volunteered some one. "They must have each gone away for some personal reason."

"But not to send a word to anybody!"

"They couldn't have been kidnaped!"

"I believe they have been," Judy said forcefully. "Tomorrow morning I'm going to the police!"

She did not do so, because she had a violent headache the next day. It was one of the results of the physical suffering and mental strain she had been through.

The doctor came to see her, and she had a long talk with him. He was not the great surgeon who had treated her feet, but the practitioner who was looking after her general health. He was quite a young man and fully alive to all that she meant, not only to men as individuals, but to the world of men.

* * *

"You've come to a standstill," he told her. "I'm not satisfied with you. You must go away. You must get into the sun."

"All right—I'll go," she said a little ungraciously. "I'll go before the end of this month."

"The sooner the better," he replied with decision.

Her head was very bad. When the landlady's daughter came up to ask if she would see Mr. Steyne for a few minutes, she could not resist.

"Forgive me for coming," Alan said; "but I thought perhaps you had heard from Clarissa."

"Not a word," she answered. "I'm worried ill."

Steyne came and stood near her.

"Your head aches, Judy?"

His voice said that he wished his head could ache for her. Judy had heard that note in many voices; but only in his did it rouse and answering thrill.

"It's nothing," she said. She looked up at him and smiled. As on the first night when she had seen him, she was struck by his physical fitness, by the look which said that he got what he wanted. "The doctor says I must go away," she went on.

"Judy, you are going away?"

"He says I must. You know there is just a chance that some day I may dance again. I must get well."

"Of course, you must get well."

"It won't do me any good to go now, because I'm so worried about Chummy."

"Yes, I know."

"Alan!" Her voice was sharp with the exasperation of continued anxiety. "Why hasn't she written to you?"

"I don't know. I can't think."

"It'll drive me crazy!"

Her mouth puckered. She looked for a moment like a child about to cry.

"Judy!" Steyne said quickly. "Don't! Don't!"

She could see he was aching to take her in his arms.

"You mustn't mind anything I say today, Alan," she said wistfully. "I have a terrible headache."

"Judy, I can't stand it!"

"Nor can I. You mustn't say

'Looking Backward'

July 30, 1910

When asked yesterday concerning the truth of rumors to the effect that he would be candidate for the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney of Delta county, Attorney Newton C. Spencer replied that he was considering the matter. He stated that he had not fully decided whether he would make the race.

Michigan will experience a three days' drought in September, when by the operation of the Warner-Cramton law the saloons of the state must keep their doors closed for that length of time. September 4 is Sunday, September 5 is Labor Day and September 6 is primary election day, the saloons must be closed. Users of wet goods will therefore have to stock up with enough to last them during the drought.

It is indeed a pleasure to note that four new residence buildings are to be erected for the purpose of housing tenants who do not own their own homes.

These five room cottages are being erected by the Kratze estate on two double lots on the corner of Harrison and Wells avenue and will be ready for occupancy by October 1.

James A. MacKillican who has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. A. F. Snyder and his mother, Mrs. M. MacKillican, South Elm street, will leave tonight for Hailey, Idaho, where he has accepted a position as the superintendant of the Minot mine.

HOME

I come back home, but home is somewhere else,
For where is Mary now, and where is Nels,
    And all the other friends of other days?
    Gone, gone their ways.
Whatever their way may chance to be.
I come back home—it is not home to me.

The street is here, the house is much the same,
But to the door no watching mother came.
    No dog barked welcome when it heard my tread.
    Old friends are dead
And I a stranger where I once was kin.
Here is my home, without a friend within.

Where shall I find them, all the loved and gone?
I must look upward and I must look on,
    For over yonder they are waiting still,
    And always will.
They made home heaven, now ahead they roam,
Who made home heaven, and make heaven home.

Health Tips

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

If the person tendine toward dyspepsia realizes his condition soon enough and adopts proper habits of regulation, recovery promptly ensues. Unfortunately, he attempts far too often to cure his condition by something taken out of a bottle that he has selected for himself.

When his appetite begins to fail he tries to stimulate it with appetizers or cocktails taken before meals. This is simply an added burden to a weakened system. All the kick that he gets is mental and the interior furnishing responsible is not helped.

If he reads faddist magizines he will try copious draughts of orange juice, which is not in any sense of the word a cure for his condition. He may try starvation, which will relieve him temporarily of the digestive trouble, but will weaken him, perhaps produce adidosis, and certainly not cure him since he is likely to go back to the same bad habits as soon as he feels a little better.

The proper treatment for the simpler forms of so-called dyspepsia is the creation of good hygiene regarding eating. The two factors of first importance are the establishment of regular hours of eating and insistence on leisure during the performance. The human system is so regulated that the establishment of a regular hour for eating is promptly marked by in effort of the digestive mechanism to get ready for the food before it is due to arrive.

The juices begin to be deposited that aid in the digestion. The muscles of the stomach and intestine walls are toned up ready to do their share in mixing and moving the food along. Little ripples of activity called "peristalsis" begin to run up and down. Then if disappointment ansues they get out of the habit of getting ready and digestion is harder when it is necessary.

There are a lot of foods that everyone knows are indigestible. Fried and greasy foods are enveloped in a layer of fat through which the digestive juices penetrate with great difficulty. The inside of hot breads or partially baked cakes or pastries are digested with trouble. Very hot foods cause congestion, very cold foods slow digestion, alcohol and hot spices are so irritating to the lining of the stomach as they are to the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, and a person who is physically very tired has internal muscles that are just as tired as the external ones.

The idea that eating when one is tired is a good method for overcoming fatigue is very bad logic and quite unscientific.

Plenty of exercise, fresh air, diversion and sufficient sleep are marvelous aids to digestion and certainly help out appetite. Appetite is quite necesary to good digestion. Appetite is the symptom which lets the interested person know that his digestive mechanism is all set to go and wants something to go on.

HE'S STILL CHAMPION

N. N. Hajar Munising jeweler, claims to hold the title of champion fisherman among the scores of local sportsmen who are afflicted with that strange and mysterious malady known as fisheritis, a malady that impels them to haunt the lakes and streams of Alger county from break of day until the deep shadows of the forest nights, make it impossible for them to distinguish a bullhead from a trout, who presistently go forth, day in and day out, rain or shine, in blistering hot weather, regardless of the swarms of mosquitoes that assail them, then come back home and brag about their understanding of expert fishing, the best bait to use, the best method of casting, intimating a concealed knowledge of the habitat of the speckled beauties, of the black bass and the home of walleye and yellow perch, and, while listening you are apt to become infected with the same malady and feel like going out yourself, coming back sunburned, blistered, mosquito-bitten, but crowned with the indescribable glory of having caught a mess of trout, whose beautiful colors have caught the tints of the rainbow, with ruby spangled sides, whose graceful forms embody speed, the very flash of an irridescent dream—the inspiration that caused a Kentuckian to once remark that a trout was made to swim three times, once in water, once in butter and the third time in bourbon. If you have never looked at these aristocrats of the finny tribe—if you have never partaken of this ambrosial food, then refrain, else this madness will overtake you, you will neglect your home and family, and your business to wade the streams of Alger county like scores of others of the indefatigable disciples of old Isaac Walton. Nick Hajar belongs to this class. He becomes affected on the first of May every year, and is out every day that he can spare the time. Last Sunday when the weather was so hot, he was out fishing, wading streams and casting on some inland lake. He returned home with fifteen large speckled trout, measuring from eight to sixteen inches, thirty yellow perch and five black bass, the largest bass weighing five and one half pounds, naked. If any one in Alger county disputes Nick's right to the title of champion fisherman for sport, the writer would like to hear from him.

TO PAVE LYNN STREET

The city commissioners held a public hearing last Monday evening for the purpose of taking up the question of laying concrete on Lynn street from Superior to Varnum, a distance of four blocks. There was but one bid tendered and that was from Victor Carlson and Sons of Minneapolis for $2.68 per square surface yard, for seven inch slabs. The street is 28 feet in width, including curb and gutter, and it is estimated that the entire cost will be $14,000. Carlson and Sons were awarded the contract and will begin the work at once and it is expected that it will take but a short time to complete it, although the contract runs until September first.

Mrs. Albert Inman of Melstrand was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

The Rotary club met at the Beach Inn for a noon dinner yesterday, a most enjoyable session. Miss Margaret Goff sang several numbers, accompanied by Miss Margaret McMillan. There was a round table discussion of the question: "Is crime on the increase in the United States?" Every member present was called upon by Atty. John I. Penegor, chairman of the entertainment committee, to elucidate the question, and there were numerous responses.

Mrs. O. E. Brown and daughter Pauline left Tuesday on an auto trip to Ann Arbor.

Supt. H. A. Wood of the Mather high school, is back from Grand Rapids, much improved in health.

Miss Fanny Slater is back from Ann Arbor where she was operated on for removal of her tonsils.

SCHOOL MEETING

The Munising township board of education met last Monday evening and canvassed the votes, 33 in number, cast at the last school election, and declared William Duffet reelected trustee. The board also authorized the purchase of 300 tons of soft coal from the city at $6.50 per ton, this amount being what was left from last year's purchase. This coal will go to the Mather high school, which uses about 500 tons per year. Three or four hundred tons more will be required for the other buildings.

FIVE HUNDRED CARS

Superintendent of Public Works Duffet informs the Press that approximately 500 tourists cars have parked at the city tourist camp on the lake shore, off M94 this summer. The caretaker is Al Heimer, who receives $25 per month for his work, this being in addition to $50 per month which the city pays him for taking care of the old pumping station, with free rental.

Mrs. Joseph Stevens and daughter Eva of Trenary were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Y. Stevens yesterday. Mr. Stevens, who was so badly injured a few days ago when he fell from a load of hay at his farm near Winters, is feeling some better.

To the Voters of Delta County

Joe I. Perow

A message from Joe I. Perow, Republican Candidate for Sheriff of Delta County at the Primary Election Sept. 9, 1930:

Dear Voters: On account of my present work I am unable to come out and meet all the voters of Delta county as I would like to do, but I wish to bring you this little reminder of my candidacy for the office of sheriff at the primaries Sept. 9. Escanaba has been my home town for 45 years, and I have been a taxpayer here for 27 years. For a time I conducted a business at Northland, but my family lived here most of the time. While at Northland I held various offices, including township treasurer, board of review, school board treasurer and president. I also served as postmaster and served three years as fire and game warden with the state conservation department. For many years I have held the post of deputy county sheriff, serving under the following different sheriffs: John Raugh, Marquette, John Lehman, James Maloney, John Newcomb (now warden Marquette prison), Aaron Johnson, Andrew Iverson, Delta county, Frank Odess, Elmer Swanson.

On May 17, 1898, I volunteered to fight with the U. S. forces in the war with Spain and served eight months in Cuba. I was awarded an honorable discharge for honest and faithful service, and now hold the office of commander of Valentine camp 21, Spanish War Veterans. At the present time I am serving as Escanaba police traffic officer and deputy sheriff.

I believe that my past experience for the last 20 years has fitted me for the office of sheriff, and I sincerely ask your support at the polls. If nominated and elected to this important office. I promise to exercise the authority of my office in a fair and square manner, to enforce all laws of the state, and to assist all city, village and township officers in the maintenance of law and order. I trust you will give this matter your earnest consideration and assure you that your vote will be appreciated. I believe that successful men should be chosen for the responsible office of sheriff, and assure you that my nomination will be for the best interests of Delta county.

I wish to announce further to the voters that I have selected Frank Hirn, Escanaba baker, to serve as my undersheriff. Mr. Hirn is a reliable, honest local business man, a life resident of this city, and I feel that he is eminently capable and qualified for the position.

My motto in this campaign is—

A Vote for Me is a Vote for You

If I can save for myself, I will also save for you

VOTE for PEROW for SHERIFF

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT

Lupe Valez is Anita, the daughter of Morgan, a descendant of the great buccaneer in "Hell Harbor," the latest United Artists-Inspiration picture which came to the Delft Theatre yesterday. The blood of pirates intermingling with the royal corpuscles of Spanish ladies courses through her veins and for the entire length of the picture Lupe is quite her own volcanic self.

"Hell Harbor," is a tale of pirate-like traders, modern incarnations of Kidd and Silver, who seek to steal, not only gold, but ladies' hearts. On the Island of Madre, a rough jewel of the Caribbean where a polyglot crowd makes life swift and interesting, Lupe as Anita, is beset by a treacherous father who wishes to marry her to a shrewd trader, played deftly and ably by that excellent character actor, Jean Hersholt. Out of the frustration of her father's attempt to marry her to Horngold, the trader, comes Lupe's true love—a lover, American and bold—played by John Holland, last seen here in "She Goes to War," with Eleanor Boardman.

The featured players, Lupe and Jean Hersholt, play their parts admirably. Lupe gives a vigorous interpretation of the wild, young lass whose unbending will give the story impetus. For the first time she speaks and the voice which was heard singing in "Lady of the Pavements," comes now vibrantly and sweetly with the words of Anita in "Hell Harbor." Here is a naivete to the manner in which Lupe speaks her lines that is altogether charming.

The two bodies will be buried side by side in the family lot in Flatrock cemetery.

Olafson Coming, Lindsay Assured

Definite assurance that Andy P. Olafson, friend of the farmer rural salesman, and self-styled newspaper writer, would attend the farmers' picnic to be held at Pioneer Trail Park Thursday, was given in a message from Mr. Olafson himself received yesterday by H. P. Lindsay of the Chamber of Commerce.

The letter follows:

"Bark R. mich July 28st—Dear mr. Linzy I have recd. your letter asking about if I would be there for the farmer Picnic July 31th and ans. soon but I could not do so as the letter was not forward me till today & have been to busy to Ans. till tonight but will Now do so & will say I will be there so you can expect me & will not Give any Politcal speech as I am not ruining for ofice but you can expect me & will be there for lunch if Posible & do not forget enter me in Cows Calling contest in Haste Andy P. Road to Farmers' Picnic Grounds Is Made Free of Dust

A number of improvements have been made for the safety and comfort of those who attend the farmer's picnic at Pioneer Trail park Thursday.

The entrance to the park at Bay View, which was cut off when construction started on the new route of US-2, has been reopened, and cars coming to the picnic may enter on this road as well as the one at the chemical plant location. Calcium chloride has been applied on the road running through the picnic grounds, and this will eliminate all danger of the dust nuisance. At the railroad crossing, where the park road crosses the tracks on a steep grade, a man will be stationed to watch traffic from either direction, and signs will be posted along the route urging drivers to cut down their speed when coming through the grounds. Entrance to the park will also be marked on the highway. State police officers have promised to be present and give assistance to county officers in directing the heavy stream of traffic expected for the day.

Brush and limbs have been cut away within the picnic grounds, new stands and tables have been installed, and the park will be in better shape to accommodate the picnic throng than ever before, it was assured yesterday. Loud speakers which will carry the program to all parts of the ground have already been installed over the platform.

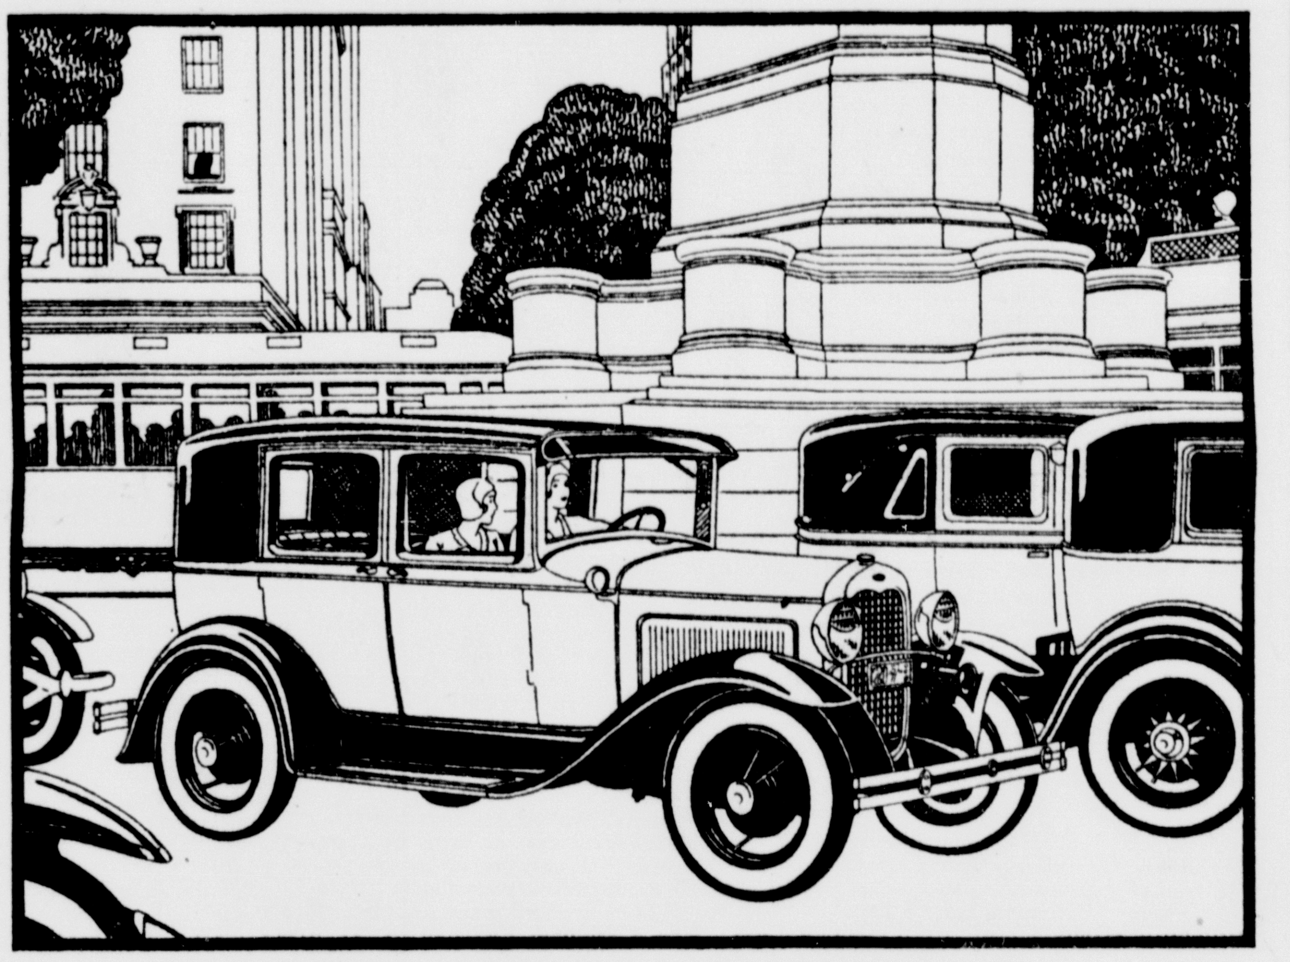
Meeting the Needs of Millions of People



The low-priced automobile has brought greater opportunity and added hours of recreation to millions of men and women

BECAUSE the automobile is such an important factor in the lives and prosperity of so many people, the purpose of the Ford Motor Company is something more than the mere manufacture of a motor car.

There is no service in simply setting up a machine or a plant and letting it turn out goods. The service extends into every detail of the business—design, production, the wages paid and the selling price. All are a part of the plan.

The Ford Motor Company looks upon itself as charged with making an automobile that will meet the needs of millions of people and to provide it at a low price. That is its mission. That is its duty and its obligation to the public.

The search for better ways of doing things is never-ending. There is ceaseless, untiring effort to find new methods and new machines that will save steps and time in manufacturing. The Ford plants are, in reality, a great mechanical university, dedicated to the advancement of industry. Many manufacturers come to see and share the progress made.

The greatest progress comes by never standing still. Today's methods, however successful, can never be taken as wholly right. They represent simply the best efforts of the moment. Tomorrow must bring an improvement in the methods of the day before. Hard work usually finds the way.

Once it was thought impossible to cast gray iron by the endless chain method. All precedent was against it and every previous experiment had failed. Many men had shut their minds to the possibility of change. But fair prices to the public demanded that wasteful methods be eliminated in this operation. Finally the way was found and old methods gave place to new.

A better way of making axle shafts saved thirty-six million dollars in four years. A new method of cutting crankcases reduced the cost by $500,000 a year. The perfection of a new machine saved a similar amount on such a little thing as one bolt. Then electric welding was developed to make many bolts unnecessary and to increase structural strength.

Just a little while ago, an endless chain conveyor almost four miles long was installed at the Rouge plant. This conveyor has a daily capacity of 300,000 parts weighing more than 2,000,000 pounds. By substituting the tireless, unvarying machine for tasks formerly done by hand, it has made the day's work easier for thousands of workers and saved time and money in the manufacture of the car. All of these things are done in the interest and the service of the public—so that the benefits of reliable, economical transportation may be placed within the means of every one.

Dutton Outlines Epworth League Camp's Program

The anual Epworth League Institute will be held on the church grounds at Lake Michigamme from August 1 to 10, it is announced by the Rev. Joseph Dutton, of Marquette, superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church and president of the institute council.

Enrollment at the camp this year will set a new high, Mr. Dutton predicts, and what is probably the strongest and best program ever offered at the camp has been arranged. A number of innovations will be introduced at the 1930 camp.

To Teach Pastors

Included among these will be the appearance there for a week of Dean Ralph Dennis, of the school of speech, Northwestern university, successor to Robert McLean Cumnock, America's most famous teacher of preachers in the last generation. Dean Dennis will meet with the ministers daily and will give personal instruction in how to get rid of preacher-tones, preacher-mannerisms and how to develop a simple direct form of public address.

On Sunday night, August 10, Dr. Dennis will give as a dramatic reading, "Joseph and His Brethern." In addition to all the above, he will give brief lecture-recitals throughout the institute.

On the first Sunday morning, August 3, Bishop Charles Edward Locke, of Minneapolis, will be the preacher. Bishop Locke has been pastor of the leading churches in the east and west and in 1920 he was elected bishop and assigned to the Phillipine Islands. In 1924 he was assigned to the St. Paul area.

Barkley to Direct Music

Robert O. Barkley, now in charge of public school music at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and winner of many upper peninsula music contest prizes, will be in charge of the instrumental music at Michigamme. It is expected that every delegate, young or old, who plays on any wind, string or other instrument, will bring it with him "and help make this initial season of this department a great success," Mr. Dutton states.

As in former years, Professor Harold Clase and Mrs. Clase, skilled leaders of chorus and piano, will be in charge of the music. Their work in past years has been considered an outstanding feature of the institute.

A program issued by Mr. Dutton lists a number of improvements on the camp grounds, several now underway and others contemplated. A registration booth now is being erected at the highway and the first model of a log cabin is under construction. It is planned to build a number of these cabins for the use of faculty, ministerial friends and guests.

A "friendship" hall is planned during the next year to serve, in some ways, as a modern hotel, providing lounge room, rest rooms and a limited number of guest chambers. It is planned to rent the log cabins to tourists when not in use, according to Mr. Dutton.

Daily Program Outined

Following is the daily program as announced by the superintendent:

6:00 a. m.—Reveille.

6:45-7:15—Morning Watch—Dr. Lesemann.

On The Edge Of This Volcano Grows The Choicest Coffee Known

Vacuum Packed
FOLGER'S COFFEE

ANTIGUA VOLCANO, GUATEMALA — From this fertile region comes a rare-flavored coffee famed the world over. Right — Patient little burros carry the coffee (as well as the farmer) to market.

NATURE'S choicest coffee is grown on the slopes of an old volcano. . . . It is flavored in Nature's own way, by steaming tropic rains . . . rich volcanic soil . . . brilliant mountain sunshine. . . . All of these combine to give it a rich vivid flavor that is utterly unlike any other coffee known.

This is one of the rare mountain coffees that you taste in Folger's. They are grown for us in certain tiny mountain districts along the West Coast of Central America. Coffees with a winey tang and delicious mellow body, that experts agree are not duplicated anywhere else in the world.

If you've never tasted Folger's, we believe your first cup will be a revelation.

CENTRAL AMERICA
PACIFIC OCEAN
CARIBBEAN SEA

A New Flavor

Ordinarily you note little real difference when you change from one brand of coffee to another. That is because over 70 per cent of all the coffee entering the United States comes from one common region—where Nature gives it the same common taste.

The Central American coffees that we use are another type altogether. Grown in a different country where Nature gives coffee a rare flavor found nowhere else in the world.

You will realize that this is no ordinary coffee with the very first rush of fragrance that comes with the opening of the tin.

The Flavor Test

Because Folger flavor is so distinctly different, we make an unusual offer. Buy a pound of this coffee today. Drink it tomorrow morning. Next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning serve Folger's again. If for any reason you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full price. We'll pay him. That's fair, isn't it? Why not try it today?

FIESTA BIG HIT OF STATE FAIR

Will Feature Grandstand Program at Escanaba August 18-23

Premiere danseuses, says Andreas Pavley, noted Russian dancer and producer of the ballet numbers in the lavishly staged musical show, the "1930 Fiesta," announced as the outstanding attraction of the U. P. State Fair grandstand entertainment, are born and made like all artists. The requirements are much the same as those of music, history, language, painting and sculpture. One advantage of the Russian school was that the children were taken away from their homes and the influence of too fond fathers, mothers and aunts, and educated under conditions especially favorable for their development as dancers. In America parents are inclined to value too highly the talent and beauty of their children and this is a great handicap to serious study and development. Luckily there are some far seeing parents and the ballet is drawn from the children of such homes. In such cases the child outdistances even the European girl, thanks to the freedom of America.

Specially Trained Soloists

Because of the personal attention given by Messrs Pavley and Oukrainsky to the members of their company, the corp de ballet is composed of girls who in Europe would rank as first dancers and the premieres as premieres. The soloists chosen by Pavley and Oukrainsky for their ballets are especially trained and each girl is suited physically and temperamentally for the depicting of the various roles.

An interview with Andreas Pavley reveals the fact that the famous ballet master is enthused over the fact that his ballet was selected above many others for the "Fiesta" production and that he has interpolated many novelties that will have a special appeal for all lovers of the best in terpsichorean art. Each of the ensemble numbers according to Pavley required much advance preparation and special training of the dancers in order that it might fit perfectly into the gorgeous background provided for it by the producers. The artists who will depict the various roles, have been found equally as elated as Pavley over the opportunity of appearing in an open-air production of the type of "Fiesta." While the experiment will call many of the dancers away from grand opera ballets for the first time, it should, nevertheless, prove beneficial from at least two standpoints. First, it will give the young ladies of the ballet a chance to appear before more people than could possibly be crowded into a theatre and the opportunity to see how the spectators take to their dancing from distances as great as five hundred feet away from the stage.

Larger Stage Provided

A second inducement, is the chance to dance in the open air where the mammoth 60 x 60 ft., stage permits of great freedom of movement. Added to this is the effect of the invigorating night breezes which should spur the girls on to their greatest efforts.

The "Fiesta" is a fast-moving, vibrant and action-ful show from the start to the finish, and the thirty or more beautiful girls who dance in the ballet numbers have been selected for their ability to keep pace with the speed and action demanded by the producers.

Some idea of the magnitude of the production may be gained when it is learned that more than 10,000 sq., ft., of canvas was required for the settings. More than half a hundred people take part in the various scenes, requiring 250 costumes. One of the largest portable stages ever built for this type of show is carried by the company, measuring 60 x 60 ft. This huge platform comes in sections and can be set up in less than an hour. The entire show will be brought close enough to the audience so that all may enjoy the performances.

Scotch Highlanders Band

Roy D. Smith, who will be remembered by thousands of music lovers in all parts of the country, as conductor of the internationally famous Royal Highlanders Band, conceived the idea of producing the "Fiesta" show. It was after his presentation of an English Hunting scene with girls, music and realistic scenic effects, for the R. K. O., circuit of theatres, that he decided that a similar production, if built to a high professional standard, could be displayed before a grandstand audience on a fair ground with equal beauty and entertainment value. The English Hunt scene, Smith advises, will be among the spectacular numbers that will be seen in the show this year and that it will be produced with even more elaborateness and correctness of detail than the theatre presentation. Another triumph in stagecraft is the Gypsy number, for which Harry Landau, New York's stage lightning genius, has supplied unique effects, the scene representing moving clouds, a rising moon and a realistic waterfall, which appears to be dropping from a great height. Landau's wizardy will be seen in other numbers, such as the depicting of galloping horses and the contrasting of colors in the Rose Ballet. Edward Larmar, noted artist, is said to have painted up to the high standard he set in creating scenery for New York musical productions and that the massive 200 ft., setting that forms the background of the "Fiesta" is one of the finest pictures of his career. The grand drape used as a masking piece for the top of the proconium, represents two giant peacocks, each measuring 25 feet in length.

Galaxy of Artists

A word might be added as to who is in the cast of the "1930 Fiesta." Included in the large company are Dora Hilton, formerly with the Manhattan Opera Company, who will have the role of prima donna; Bobby Brollier, whose inimitable Scotch songs have been heard around the world; Roy D. Smith, conductor of the famous Royal Highlanders Band; Julia Compton, premiere danseuse who won the plaudits of the audience and the praise of the press for her delightful dancing in the Chicago Civic Opera ballet; Mary Lou Spencer, who will, in company with Julia Compton, duplicate the Rose Ballet number that was so much appreciated by discriminating audiences during the last world tour of the Pavley-Oukrainski ballet; Charlotte Ade, who leads the colorful gypsy number with twenty beautiful girls; Rosalie Hathaway, who will repeat the "doll dance" a number that has always been a highlight in the Pavley and Oukrainsky stage successes.

anything to me. It wouldn't be fair."

"Judy, I love you!"

"No, no—it isn't fair! I can't"—she managed to laugh ever so jerkily—"I can't fight today."

Then she closed her eyes, and an attack of pain sent her head helplessly back against the cushions of her chair. Steyne left her, realizing that words were useless between them, and that he could not bear her pain.

* * *

The next day Judy was much better. There was a nip in the air, and it whipped up the boundless energy in her little frame. She went for a walk in the morning. She could get along quite well now on her two sticks.

Her urging heart took her to the street where Chummy and Bastien had both lived. There, on the sidewalk, beating out a doormat, was the housekeeper of Chummy's building—a vacant-faced, dark-eyed woman, thin as a rake, with very few teeth.

"Miss Morley's back," she said, smiling casually.

"What?" gasped Judy.

"Yes—and such news! Go up and see!"

Judy padded up the stairs breathlessly, both feet on each stair at the same time. Chummy's door was open. Inside there was a cloud of dust, and the furniture was all over the place.

"Chummy?" called Judy faintly.

Out came Chummy, with very brown cheeks, and took Judy in her arms.

"Judy! Little, little Judy! How did you know I was back?"

"I just came by," said Judy, when her friend had done hugging her. "And have you been mad?"

"Perhaps, a little," said Chummy, and she laughed. "You're going to scold, Judy, but you mustn't. I'll explain."

"Explain! I should like to know how you can explain, Miss Morley! And I must have a chair to sit down on."

Chummy took her into the studio and turned a chair right side up.

"But you can walk, Judy! How marvelous, marvelous!"

"And what about you?" For once Judy's voice was really cold with anger. "Do you know that you've frightened me terribly—that you've nearly killed me?"

"Judy, little Judy!" said Chummy—the new, bronzed Chummy, with the gay voice and the look of bouncing health. "I do so abjectly apologize! I've been abominably selfish, but perhaps you'll forgive me, because I—well, somehow, we felt silly and didn't like to tell."

"Didn't like to tell what?"

"That we got married and went off on our honeymoon."

"Who—got—married?" gasped Judy.

"Bastien and I."

It took more than Chummy's wedding ring to convince Judy that her friend was not mad. It took quite a lot of explanation and repetition and assurance that Mrs. Dumont knew what she was talking about.

* * *

"You and Bastien!" Judy kept saying in a bewildered voice. "Bastien and you!"

"We knew you'd all wonder a lot," Chummy said. "We felt silly—especially I, Judy, having been engaged to Alan, and finding out that it was a mistake."

"Was that why you didn't write?"

"Of course it was—and why we stayed away so long. We determined not to come back until we'd quite got used to it ourselves. You see, it did seem rather an idiotic thing to do."

"But, Chummy," said Judy suddenly, "did you really want to do it?"

Her eyes were fixed on her friend. They were filled with a great, eager question, while the rest of her face looked almost vacant. It was as if everything had come to an end, as if the mainspring of her life had suddenly run down. It was the reversal of all that she had believed to be unalterable truth. Chummy had married Bastien Dumont!

Chummy gave a ringing laugh.

"But, of course, I wanted to do it, little Judy!" she cried. "What on earth would I have done it for, otherwise?"

The question was unanswerable. Why should she have done it? It convinced Judy. She believed blindly in her friend's truth. She looked into Clarissa's eyes, and was convinced that she had married Bastien Dumont because she wanted him for her husband, and wanted no one else.

"What a good thing you found it out in time, Chummy!" she exclaimed.

She opened her arms, and the two clung together.

Judy spent the day with Chummy. In the afternoon Bastien came in, also very bronzed, and as picturesque and lively as ever. They had been to the West Indies for their honeymoon. He had found an ideal studio, with rooms where they could live, but they wouldn't be vacant until March; so they had decided to rub along as they were until then.

Judy sat between them, brimming with gladness.

"Oh, you're a perfect couple!" she cried. "I declare, you're made for each other, and why did we never think of it? You seem—you seem such tremendous friends!"

They lunched at Ginori's, and afterward went to the Cafe Turc, where the news was announced, and there was much toasting and good will and laughter. Steyne was not there.

In the late afternoon Judy went back to her rooms. She was tired. It had been a tiring day; but the Dumonts were going to take her out to dinner.

* * *

About seven o'clock Steyne burst into Judy's sitting room.

"Judy! Judy!" He was pale, and his hands that closed over hers were cold. "You've heard! Clarissa has married Dumont—and I'm free! I don't know what I'm saying or doing. Judy, I'm free!"

He was like a young whirlwind. She nodded.

"I've been with them all day, Alan. It doesn't seem like a real world at all."

"I've seen them just now, Judy, and they're as brown as berries and jolly as sandboys!"

"I know. They're very happy."

"Judy, you can't say no any more now! You can't send me away any more!"

She gave him a little helpless smile.

"I suppose not."

"Judy, say you love me," he pleaded.

But she was still in the grip of what now appeared to have been a great illusion.

"I'm so muddled, Alan—I can't think straight. It seems as if it couldn't be true!"

"But it is; and now you're going to tell me that you love me, and that you'll marry me ever so soon—just as soon as it can be done." He was on his knees by her chair. "And I'm going to take you out to Persia—it's nice and warm there!"

She put her little hands on his shoulders. It was as if her happiness were too much, as if she must struggle against it.

"Alan, supposing I wanted to dance again?"

"Of course you will dance again! Who could imagine you not dancing?"

"You wouldn't mind, Alan?"

"Mind! You wonderful Judy! I shall be ever so proud."

She smiled dreamily.

"I mightn't want to," she murmured, "even if I could."

"Judy, say you love me!"

"You know it, silly!" She looked at him through streaming tears. "I think I want to die," she whispered, as she slipped into his arms. Then she gave a long sigh, which ended up in a rapturous smile, as she added: "Except that I want to live—with you!"

On Judy's wedding day the sun shone, and then it rained and Alan was so nervous that he dropped the ring, and Frank Hylton, his best man, was so nervous that he had to chase it halfway down the aisle.

The guests laughed and cried, and the crowd outside the church cried and laughed and threw flowers. When it was all over, everybody was worn out and felt like rags, and yet somehow they knew that it was one of the greatest days of their lives.

The flower woman at the street corner, who was one of the honored guests at the reception and one of Judy's oldest friends, summed it all up.

"We 'ad plenty to eat and plenty to drink," she said, "an' I cried myself sick in church, an' I was never quite so 'appy in all my life!"

And when you got to the bottom of it, what could have been more fitting on the wedding day of little Judy Grant?

Enough Refreshments For 5,000 People at Farm Picnic Thursday

A big free show, with lots of free refreshments, will be offered at the fourth annual Delta county farmers' picnic to be held at Pioneer Trail Park on Thursday, July 31, under the auspices of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

Anticipating a record breaking crowd, the committees have arranged for a stock of ice cream, pop, coffee, sugar and cream to supply a mob of more then five thousand. All this will be given to the picnickers without any charge. And on top of this, corncob pipes and tobacco will be given to all those who indulge. Every farmer and business man in the county is cordially invited to bring his family and a basket lunch to the big jamboree.

ANDY TO ATTEND

Andy P. Olafson, itinerant salesman for the World's Best Remedy company, will be one of the visitors at the annual farmer's picnic at Pioneer Trail Park.

Andy intends to enter the cow calling and other events. He also issues a challenge to one and all to meet him in a yodeling match.

Begins at 9 a. m.

The picnic will begin at 9 a. m. with the registration of the attendance. John K. Olson and Peter Jensen will act as the official greeters.

The sports program will begin at 10 a. m. under the direction of W. J. Schmit, general chairman. A feature event of this program will be a ball game between the farmers and an Escanaba Chamber of Commerce team. At the last three picnics, the men from the country walloped the business men every time. Young blood has been injected in the lineup of the Chamber of Commerce outfit this time, however, and a real tussle is in prospect. Denis McGinn, "father" of diamond ball in Escanaba, and Charles Gafner, a ballplayer of no mean ability, will have charge of the aggregation.

Other events on the program are: a balloon race, shower race, suitcase race, log sawing contest, backward jump, 50 yard dash, tug of war, cow calling and old-time fiddlers' contests.

Band Will Play

The Escanaba Municipal Band will furnish a program of concert and popular music throughout the day. Prominent public officials, including members of the city commission, board of supervisors, Senator H. J. Rushton, and representative Henry L. Rose, will attend the affair.

E. M. Harmon, dairy editor of Successful Farming, will deliver the principal address. He will have a message that will be of immense value to both farmer and business man. In order that everyone will be able to hear him distinctly, a public address system will be installed at the speaker's platform.

Permanent refreshment stands have been erected on the grounds. Jack Bartella will be in charge of the pop, with the help of a corp of assistants. Alfred Johnson will preside at the ice cream stand, and Herman Gessner will be fulfilling his usual duty of handing out corn cob pipes and tobacco.

The Hollywood Story

NEA FICTION COPYRIGHT 1930 by NEA SERVICE Inc.

by ERNEST LYNN

CHAPTER I

DAN RORIMER had been in Hollywood two weeks when he got an airmail letter from Ziggy Young in New York. Ziggy was on the Herald-Tribune, and he was occupying the apartment in East 42nd street that Rorimer had recently vacated to go to Hollywood and a scenario-writing job with Continental Pictures.

Rorimer was in a hurry to get up to his room and change his clothes. It was Saturday afternoon and Paul Collier was going to pick him up to play golf. So when the clerk at the Roosevelt handed him the letter Rorimer stuck it in his pocket and made for the elevators.

Later on, attired in linen knickers and a light pull-on sweater, he telephoned for a bellboy to bring him some ginger ale and ice and pick up a suit to be pressed.

At the knock on his door he said, "Come in," and Collier entered, triumphantly escorting the grinning Filipino boy and carrying the tray himself.

"Just in time," he announced cheerily. "Playing the nineteenth hole first?"

"I'm hot," said Rorimer, "and I'm thirsty, and I'm not in the best of humor. Help yourself while I clean out the pockets of this suit."

Collier, mixing himself a drink and taking it over to the comfortable arm chair beside the window, said, "What's the matter, Dan? Finding they don't appreciate your talent at Continental? He stretched his long, well-proportioned frame lazily and reached for one of Rorimer's cigarets.

Dan grunted. "I learned today that they've cast Frederick Atwood as the newspaper reporter in 'Grim Holiday.' Can you imagine that sheik doing a convincing job as a newspaper man?"

"You should be glad," Paul Collier told him, "that they're starting at last to make a picture of your story. When they buy them it doesn't always mean that they produce 'em. They do funny things in Hollywood." He sighed. "Hurry up and grab your drink, Dan. I'm parched."

* * *

RORIMER tipped the bellboy and dismissed him. "Here's a letter," he said, "from Ziggy Young." He picked up his glass, said "Here's how," and sat on the bed.

"Down the hatchway," Collier responded mechanically. "What's Ziggy up to?"

Rorimer ripped open the letter, read and frowned. "It's long enough," he said presently. "I'll read the postscript—Ziggy always put his news in a great big P. S. He was never known to put the punch in his lead."

"How much does he want to borrow?" Collier asked lazily, and Rorimer got up from the bed with an oath. "Can you beat that!" he exclaimed. "He wants me to look up some girl friend of his out here and try to get her a job in pictures. Me! . . . Listen:

"'P. S. Be a regular guy for once in your life and do me a favor.'—And I've been doing nothing but favors for him ever since I've known him!—'There's a swell little girl out there in Hollywood from that dear old Tulsa, the town that gave Ziggy Young to the world. Her name is Anne Winter and her family and my family have been just like that ever since my voice started to change'."

"That's a long time," said Collier.

"Don't interrupt," said Rorimer. "'I've just learned from my mother'," he read, "'that Anne left for Hollywood about two weeks ago, all fired up with ambition to break into the movies. Her folks don't think much of the idea, but Anne's a trifle bull-headed'."

"Most of them are," Collier observed.

"Listen," Rorimer said and continued reading. "'I haven't seen Anne for about five years. She was nothing but a kid then—a trifle leggy and with lots of freckles. If she isn't good looking by this time she never will be, and, if you don't look her up and buy her a dinner whenever she's hungry I'll be off you for life. Maybe you can get her a break in the movies. You've got some kind of a pull or you wouldn't be out there yourself. And those big stars like Clara Bow and Dolores Del Whoozis can't last forever, so why not give Anne a chance?'

"That," Rorimer announced, flinging the letter down on the bed, "is what I call a lot of crust. I should spend my time and money being nice to a friend of Ziggy Young's family down in Tulsa!"

Collier was laughing heartlessly. "You haven't got a chance in the world to duck it," he said. "I'll bet Ziggy's already written to dear little Anne and she'll be expecting to hear from you." He added that the next time he saw Dolores Del Rio he would tell her something to give her a laugh.

* * *

COLLIER saw them all. He wrote a daily column on Hollywood for an impressively long list of papers, and spent most of his working hours around the studios or interviewing stars in their homes. Like Rorimer, he had known Ziggy Young in newspaper work in New York, but he and Rorimer had become acquainted only on the latter's arrival in Hollywood. It had been a telegram from Young that had sent him down to meet Rorimer's train, and then, at Ziggy's request, to attempt a practical joke.

Dan Rorimer got his clubs from the closet and announced he was ready to play golf but Collier said, "Not so fast. You can't throw Ziggy down. The old boy would do as much for you. He's got a heart as big as—"

"As big as a bird seed," said Rorimer.

"Anyway, Danny my boy, you can't throw Ziggy down. What's Miss Winter's address?"

"Some place on Romaine street."

"Let me see that letter. I'm going to call up information and see if she has a phone listed."

He busied himself at the telephone and, after getting information, announced that there was no number.

"Got a privately listed telephone, I suppose," said Rorimer a little bitterly. "Big stuff! Every extra girl in Hollywood has one." He observed that it hadn't taken Anne Winter long to learn the ropes and that it would mean extra trouble to drive out to her address to look her up.

"Send a telegram," said Collier. "Tell her to call you up and leave her phone number."

"All right. And I'll send Ziggy Young a telegram, too."

They went downstairs. At the telegraph desk Rorimer wrote a message for Anne Winter, explaining that he was a friend of Ziggy Young's and would like her to get in touch with him at the Roosevelt.

To Ziggy Young he wrote: "Am looking up Miss Winter stop I hope you get murdered in a speakeasy."

Then he and Collier, two slim, well-molded young men in golf togs, proceeded to their game.

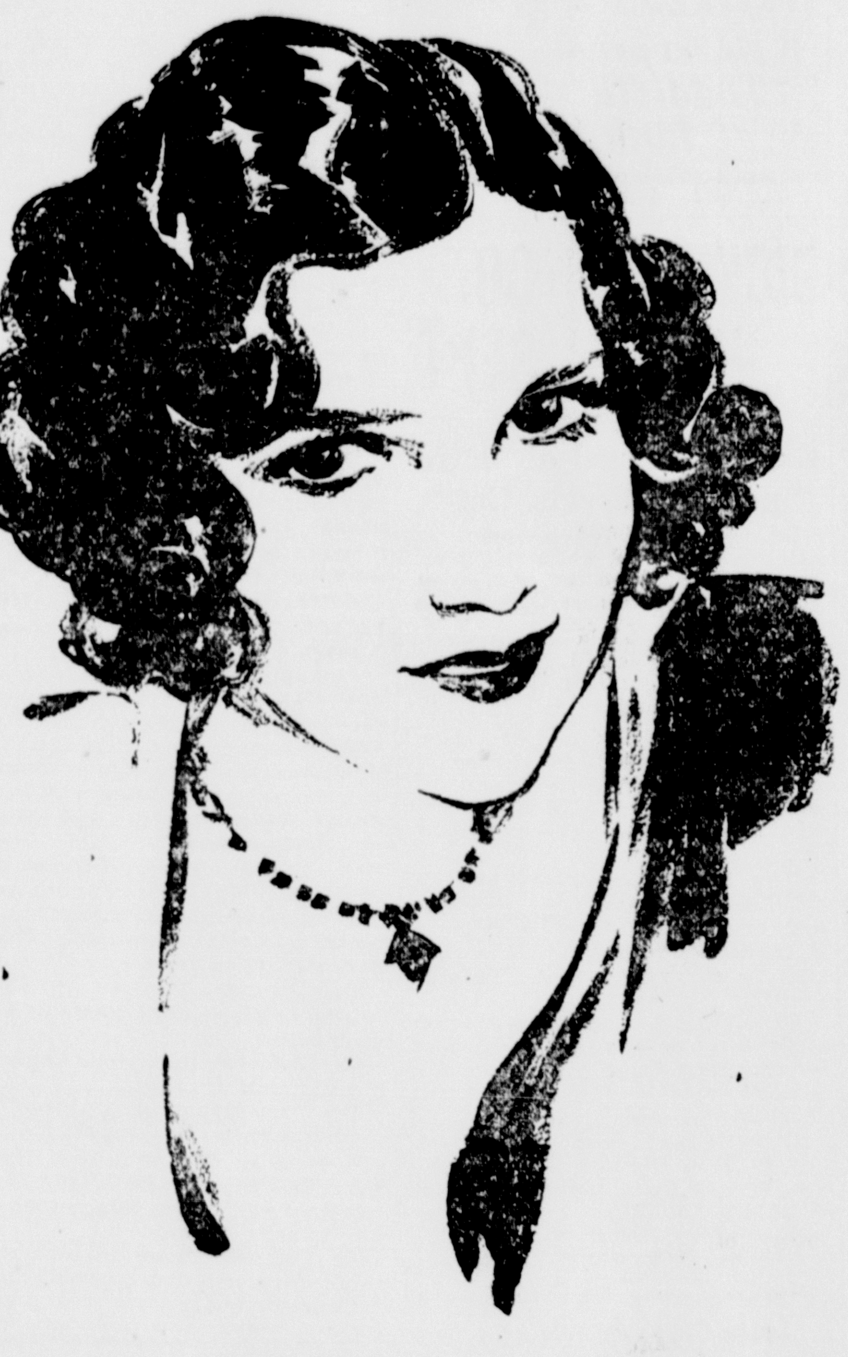
It was half-past six or later when Rorimer got back to the hotel. There was a message for him at the desk when he asked for his key. Miss Winter had called in and had left her telephone number, Gladstone 5855.

Upstairs, changing clothes again, Dan gave the matter some thought. He was still indignant at Ziggy Young's habit of taking everything for granted and he didn't relish the idea of chaperoning some movie-struck girl around Hollywood. Why in thunder did people come to Hollywood, anyway, if they didn't have a job lined up? They only added to an already aggravated unemployment problem.

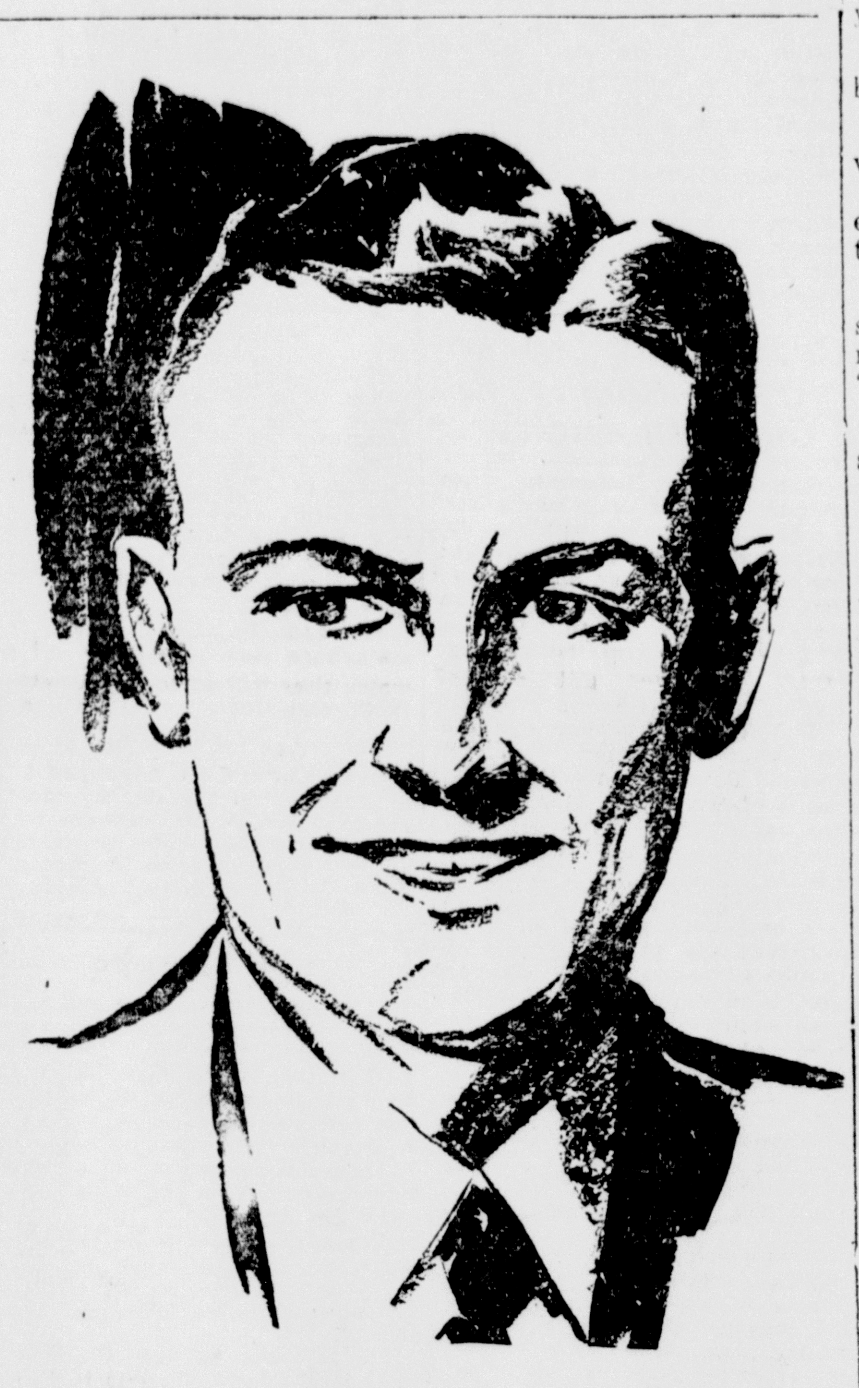
* * *

HE certainly wouldn't have come out here, he told himself as he kicked off his shoes, if he hadn't been given a contract. And he hadn't asked for his job, either. If he had, he probably wouldn't have got it. It had been a case of Continental Pictures liking a couple of his published stories and buying one and taking an option on the other. And then the executive at their New York office had talked about the opportunities for good dialogue writers. And then the contract.

Ziggy Young had called him a lucky dog and Rorimer supposed he was. He grinned in recollection of the party he had thrown for some of his newspaper friends. His farewell party. To a man they wished him well, but not one would admit it. They made dire prophecies; they predicted he would be back in New York before summer, with a pair of smoked glasses and a tin cup. And they had sort of poured him onto the train . . . Oh, well, it was a good party.



Anne Winter came from Tulsa to break into the movies



Dan Rorimer came from New York to write scenarios

His mind went back to Anne Winter. The slip of paper bearing her message lay on the little stand beside his bed. Paul Collier had said, in parting, "Don't forget to call Miss Winter. And if she has a girl friend I'm out of town."

Collier had said he was going to Long Beach. Rorimer picked up the slip of paper and read it again. He thought: "I don't have to call her up—not tonight, anyway." Still, he had committed himself to Ziggy Young, and he had nothing to do tonight.

He rang for some ginger ale and finished dressing. It was warm. Feb. 15 and just like summer. Probably snowing in New York, he thought. He hoped Ziggy Young was knee deep in slush, covering a fire or something.

When the bellboy came Rorimer filled a glass, drank it and picked up the telephone. "Gladstone 5855," he said.

Waiting for the connection, he reminded himself that he never did have any luck on blind dates. Just a big sap, he thought, and fervently cursed Ziggy Young again.

"Hello," he said, "is this Miss Winter?"

It was.

"This is Dan Rorimer—Ziggy Young's friend. You got my telegram, I see."

Miss Winter said she had and that it was kind of him to take the trouble. She added that it was nice to hear from one of Ziggy Young's friends.

* * *

HER voice was pleasing. Rorimer was altogether unprepared to find it so. Nice and now, and he had expected a strident sound, full of freckles and long legs. It had poise. It made him think that its owner knew exactly what to do with it.

For an awkward moment he paused. Then he said, "Well, how do you like Hollywood?" And thought immediately that it sounded very silly.

"I'm in love with what I've seen of it," said Miss Winter. "You see, I've had a rather bad cold and have had to stay in. I'm not," she hastened to add, "blaming it on your climate I cought it on the train coming out."

Rorimer laughed. "I'm not a Californian," he said. "I'm a stranger here too."

"Oh, really? That encourages me."

Rorimer said he felt a little courage himself and glanced toward the tray on the writing desk. "Are you busy this evening?" he ventured.

She was not.

"That's fine," Rorimer said. "If you haven't eaten, perhaps you'd like to dine with me. If you're at all like me, you're not crazy about eating alone."

"I think that would be lovely," said Miss Winter. "I was just about to go out to dinner when you called."

"It's a date then," said Rorimer. "And later maybe we can dance—unless you think your cold. . . "

"Oh, I'm entirely over it now. And I'd like to, very much.

Rorimer said he would be over as soon as she was ready. "We needn't dress unless you want to."

"Then I'll be ready when you arrive."

He hung up the receiver feeling decidedly better. He even felt friendly once more toward Ziggy Young. Standing before his dresser mirror he gave a final careful adjustment to his tie and with military brushes did a little unnecessary work on his hair.

It was brown hair, rather wavy and of a slightly coarse texture that, once combed, required little attention. But Rorimer brushed it anyway—straight back above the ears—and glanced critically at the part. A tanned reflection looked back at him from the glass, strong-mouthed, firm of chin and blue of eye. A not unpleasing face, especially with regard to the eyes, which had little laughter wrinkles at the sides and were intense in their blueness.

Rorimer's watch showed a quarter after seven. He slipped on his coat and selected a fresh handkerchief and stood tall and straight before the glass while he put on the hat that he wore only at night. His days since coming to southern California were bareheaded ones.

A block away from the hotel was the garage where he kept his car, a sturdy roadster of low price but sporty lines. The evening, he reflected, climbing in behind the wheel, might turn out rather well after all. A girl with a voice like Anne Winter's, he told himself, would have to possess more than ordinary charm or else the whole world was wrong. He hummed a few bars from the theme song of a new picture as he drove.

* * *

HE brought his car to a stop presently in front of a small apartment building and found, after looking at the letter boxes in the vestibule, that Miss Anne Winter lived in Number Two. A door opened half way down the ground floor corridor in answer to his ring and the "blind date" came advancing to meet him.

She said, "Hello, Mr. Rorimer," in a nice comradely manner. "You see I was ready."

Dan, feeling her warm handclasp and noting the brilliant perfection of teeth revealed by her smiling lips, vowed that he would send Ziggy Young a couple of the finest ties on Hollywood boulevard. His "How do you do, Miss Winter?" sounded stiffly formal to him and entirely inadequate. Holding the street door open for her to pass through ahead of him, he murmured something about hoping he hadn't kept her waiting too long for dinner.

"Of course not," she assured him. "You got out here so quickly you must have flown."

Rorimer said, "Well, here's my airplane—hop in."

"Are you a good pilot?" she asked.

"Perfectly trustworthy as long as my mind is on my work," he assured her, and was rewarded by the pleasant sound of her low-pitched laugh which told him that none of the implications of his remark had escaped her.

"Now then," Rorimer said, climbing in beside her, "where away? Any choice in the matter of eating places?"

She told him she preferred to leave the choice to him. "I really haven't been around much—honestly. You don't know what a conscientious invalid I have been. I've obeyed the doctor's orders absolutely—in bed every night by nine for a whole week . . . But I mustn't bore you, talking about a cold in the head. Anyway, I'm feeling gorgeous now."

Rorimer resisted a temptation to tell her that she looked the same way. Her eyes, dark and wide and vivid, shone brightly in the gloom of the car and her hair, he suspected, must be coal black beneath the tight-fitting, helmet-shaped hat.

He said, "Have you been to the Brown Derby?"

"Just once—for lunch."

"Let me see, now. Would you like to go to the Blossom Room at the Roosevelt? That's a good place to eat and dance, but it's a little early. I'll tell you; let's have dinner at the Brown Derby and then go to the Blossom Room to dance."

She nodded her head vigorously. "Check!"

"We're taking off. Stand by for a loop," he said, and swung the car around in the street in a tight arc.

* * *

SOME minutes later, as they were being shown to a table in the restaurant, Rorimer heard someone call, "Hello, Dan," and he turned to see a young man waving to him from one of the tables along the wall.

Rorimer said, "Hello, Johnny," and saluted, and when he helped Anne Winter with her coat he informed her: "That's Johnny Riddle. He's a free-lance press agent. And the girl with him is Olivia Marden."

"I saw her as we came in," Anne Winter said. "I've heard a lot about her, of course. I think she's just lovely. I'm tempted to turn and stare."

"Lot's of people do," Rorimer said. "I'll have to tell you about Johnny later. He's quite a boy. You see, he has a bunch of movie stars for clients—Olivia Marden is one—and he falls in love with every one in turn . . . Shall I order for you?"

She nodded. "I'd love to have you. It's so comforting to have someone do it for you."

"It's a gift," said Rorimer, laughing. "I merely choose what I want myself and then double the order."

Nevertheless, she noted, he studied the menu with considerable care and turned now and then to ask a question of the waiter.

When he had finished and offered her a cigaret, which she declined with a murmured "No thanks—not before meals," she leaned across the table toward him and said, "And now you'll have to tell me all about yourself."

Rorimer smiled, and his nose exuded thin streams of smoke.

"All?" he said.

"Well, all you discreetly can."

"Well, I'll give you a tabloid version. Born in Knoxville, Tennessee. Went to school at Vanderbilt. Worked on a paper in Nashville, and another one in Detroit. Went to New York and worked on a couple of more there. Met Ziggy Young on the Herald-Tribune and roomed with him for a while. When I went over to the Telegram we split up, Ziggy having night hours and I working days. Not so good for sleeping, if you know what I mean."

She nodded and smiled.

Rorimer continued: "Wrote a short story while I was on the Telegram, based on a murder story I covered. Much to my surprise, it was accepted. Wrote another one about a certain high-hat prizefighter and that was accepted. Then I got a swelled head and listened too attentively to my literary agent, who advised me to give up newspaper work and devote my time to fiction . . . In a little less than a year I wrote 12 short stories and a play. Two of the stories were accepted. The play is still kicking around Broadway and by this time must have been turned down by every producer in New York."

* * *

HE stopped. "Still interested?"

She nodded eagerly.

"All right, if you insist. Two out of 12 is not so good—especially at the prices I got." He smiled wryly at some recollection as he explained that more than once during his year of free-lancing he had regretted divorcing himself from a weekly payroll. Pride, he said, was the only thing that had kept him from going back to ask for his old newspaper job—pride and the good-natured razzing his old associates would have given him.

"They used to call me O. Henry and ask me if I was eating regularly. I always did," he said, studying the cigaret in his fingers, "but toward the last I was going without lunch and trying to kid myself that three meals a day was too much.

"Then Miss Hunt—my agent—sold one of my stories to Continental Pictures." He stopped abruptly and extinguished his cigaret at sight of their waiter returning.

Anne Winter watched him attentively. She was a good listener. She rested her elbows on the table, supporting her chin in her hands. She leaned back now as the waiter placed dishes before them, but said, when he had departed again:

"You haven't finished. I can't eat until I hear the rest."

There was, Rorimer said, little else to tell. Someone at Continental had thought he liked Rorimer's stuff well enough to offer him a contract. "Someone without much judgment . . . And that's the end of the story."

His deprecating way of telling it gave Anne Winter the impression that he was not too fond of talking about himself. She said gravely, "I'm sure that's not the end; it's just the beginning for you."

"You're very kind," Rorimer said, "but now that I'm here they don't know what to do with me." He added that he guessed he was lucky. "In fact," he said, eyeing her with laughing but bold intentness, "I know I'm lucky."

She laughed delightedly, a pleasing low ripple of sound, but ducked her head in pretended confusion. Rorimer liked the way her long lashes swept her cheeks when her eyes lowered.

"Have they made a picture yet from your story?" she asked. "What is the name of it?"

Rorimer said that production was about to start. "Grim Holiday," he said, was his story. "But Lord knows what they'll call it when they're through with it."

He spoke with a shade of resentment. Anne Winter watching him, thought she saw rebellion in his eyes and in the set of his lean jaw.

COUNCIL PASSES 2 ASSESSMENTS

The city council passed the special assessment rolls last evening at their regular semi-monthly meeting for the laying of a sewer between Beaver and Otter streets on Chippewa avenue, and the construction of both sewer and water mains on North Fourth street between Deer and Caribou streets. Both special assessments were moved and adopted by Councilman Carlson and seconded by Councilman Falk. They were passed unanimously.

By order of the council the plan of financing the Chippewa avenue projection will be in three equal annual installments, the first installment to be levied together with interest on deferred installments at six per cent per annum upon the city tax roll for July, 1931. Each property owner will be assessed according to the number of feet of frontage. This assessment will call for an outlay of $729, half of which will be paid by the Manistique Pulp and Paper company.

The North Fourth street project has an estimated cost of $2,000.16 and will be apportioned among the property owners in the same manner as the Chippewa sewer proposition. Owners of property on this street will be given ten years to make payment, the installments falling due in ten equal annual payments, with interest at six per cent per annum on deferred installments.

Other business consummated by the city fathers was the granting of a permit to D. J. Livingstone for the erection of a sign in front of his place of business at 123 Walnut street, under the supervision of the street commissioner. A soft drink license was granted to Francis McNamara at 210 Deer street. Both resolutions were made by Councilman Erikson and seconded by Councilman Carlson.

Leroy Watson Rites Held This Afternoon

The body of Leroy Watson, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson, who was killed Sunday evening when struck by a bolt of lightning while in bathing at a lake near Iron Mountain, will arrive in the city this morning. Mrs. Watson, mother of the youth who was formerly Miss Marie Fiebernitz of this city, was struck in the foot by the lightning bolt and is suffering from severe shock.

Funeral services will be held at two o'clock this afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Parker who reside near Marblehead on the Whitedale road. Rev. Hoafield, pastor of the Congregational church at Garden, will officiate at the funeral. Burial will be made in Lakeview cemetery.

Out of town relatives who are expected to be present are Mrs. Harry Rush South Bend, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bouchard, of Newberry.

Chautauqua Leaves After Playing to Capacity Audiences

The five day Community Chautauqua program was brought to a close last evening with the Fay Epperson Whistling Trio delighting a capacity audience, with their bird imitations, child impersonations and interesting readings. R. S. Wallace, naturalist and bird expert, held a ten minute open forum for questions on birds.

During the afternoon the Junior Chautauquans put on their "Youth Revue" under the supervision of Miss Mary Albright who has had charge of the children's recreation hour during the past week.

That chautauqua in Manistique is a very popular form of entertainment was proved by the capacity audiences which attended the productions. This year's chautauqua was exceedingly well produced and the high class entertainment offered, justly merited the large attendance.

MAY ORGANIZE ATHLETIC CLUB

All who are interested in the organization of a Manistique amateur athletic club are requested to be present at a special meeting which will be held this evening at the fire hall at 7:30 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to guage the interest of the residents of this city in the proposition and if there is enough enthusiasm manifested an election of officers will be held and methods of finance will be discussed.

The new movement has been instigated by David "Scotty" Livingstone and has been "on foot" for the past two months. Various business men of the city are said to be in favor of it and are wholeheartedly in accord with the formation of a means of recreation during the winter months. No age limit has been set for membership, but it is understood that the club will cater to business men and a few of the older high school students.

If sufficient interest in the club can be obtained, permission will be asked to use the high school gym. Such sports as volley ball, boxing, wrestling, indoor baseball, basketball, cross country, and various forms of gym work will be indulged in. A cross country team will be developed by Mr. Livingstone which will put on an exhibition at the county fair in September.

At the present time the city is without an athletic association of any kind and it is felt that the organization of an athletic club would provide some of the older men with many hours of good wholesome recreation during the winter months.

FACES TRIAL AT CIRCUIT COURT

Pleading not guilty when arraigned here yesterday before Justice of Peace Hupy on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, Joe Levine, Manistique cattle and horse dealer was bound over to circuit court to stand trial and was released under bonds of $300.00.

Levine's arrest and arraignment were the outgrowth of an argument, last October over the sale of stock, between Levine and Albert F. Beardsley, Garden Township farmer, in which the former is alleged to have brandished a club and made threats against Beardsley.

According to testimony presented by witnesses for the complainant Levine had negotiated with Beardsley for a young bull, and was to return within a few days to remove the animal. It was claimed that over a month had elapsed before Levine's driver came to the farm for the sire and that Beardsley refused to give up the animal with compensation for feed and care during this period. Levine accompanied the driver upon the next trip to the farm and it was upon this occasion that the assault is alleged to have taken place.

Levine denied making serious threats against Beardsley and contended that the stick he had in his hands could not be classed as a dangerous weapon. He was represented by Att'y J. J. Herbert of Manistique.

RIALTO

If the avalanche of back stage and night club dramas that came in with the talkies has somewhat dulled your appetite for the movies, be of good cheer, for here is "Mamba" to prove that pictures can talk and still have a wealth of dramatic tensity and a tremendous scope in outdoor action. They can still have a scenic splendor and inspire awe and thrills.

Bolte's fiendish cruelty is his own undoing. He is responsible for the death of the daughter of a native chieftain, Hassim. A great giant, Hassim threatens to kill Bolte, who drives him off with his bull whip, but when Hassim comes back with his tribe of shrieking and blood-thirsty savages at his heels Bolte comes to a fate really too good for him. He is trampled to death under foot.

The Rialto theatre is presenting "Mamba," a Tiffany production and one they may well be proud of. See it, if for no other reason than its sweeping, thrilling action, its red-blooded vitality and the new excellence of Technicolor.

Runs Red Light; Takes Jail Term

Albert Wonder was yesterday sentenced by Justice Hupy to 10 days in the county jail for failure to obey the traffic light at the corner of Ninth and Delta. Wonder took the jail sentence as an alternative to paying $8.50, costs of the case.

Wonder's arraignment in court here came as an aftermath of an auto accident Sunday in which because of his failure to stop with the red light, he crashed into an auto driven by Blanche Burroughs. Damages to the Burroughs car amounting to $26.59, were paid by the father of young Wonder, owner of the car which the defendant was driving.

There will be no trouble in disposing of the remainder, should some fail to take their allottment, as the issue was oversubscribed better than three times.

HUNT MADE FOR MISSING COUPLE

Authorities in the eastern end of the upper peninsula and in Ontario, Canada, have been notified to be on the lookout for a young Gladstone couple, missing for the past four days.

Campbell and James Rouman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rouman, left this city late Friday afternoon in the Campbell automobile and no word has been received from them since their departure. They were seen early Friday night in Manistique where they lunched, and later the same night in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Custom officials report that a couple answering the description of the missing pair crossed into Canada about 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning but that the automobile was at that time bearing a Canadian license.

Mr. Campbell, father of the missing girl, has gone to Canada to aid in the search.

(Associated Press Financial Writer.)

New York, July 29. (AP)—Stocks were heavy in quiet trading today. Weakness of the railroad and merchandising shares spread to other sections of the list, with the assistance of short selling, but a close rally reduced the extreme declines by a fraction to a couple of points and final prices ruled one to five lower. The average loss was about a point and a half.

The market yesterday had gone slightly above the high for the recovery, attained on July 18, but the move had been indecisive and it soon became apparent this morning that the bulls would have difficulty if further lifting power was applied. The opening was heavy. As the trading moved along it became apparent that some of the news was being construed bearishly.

Traders on the short side saw prospects of tariff retaliation in the conservative victory in Canada. Others professed to be disturbed by the possiblity of commercial controversies with the Soviet. The market turned more decisively downward, however, on the appearance of further unfavorable railroad earnings reports, notably that of Union Pacific, whose June operating income was off 46 per cent in comparison with a year ago. In addition, an estimate of Southern Railway's first half net income placed the per share earnings at only 36 cents against $5.74 in the initial six months of 1929.

Rail Issues Sag.

The rails were offered in some volume on this news. Union Pacific dropped 5 points, while Southern Railway slumped 7 to a new low. There were extreme losses of two to five points in Rock Island, Louisville & Nashville, Rock Island, Atlantic Coast Line, St. Louis San Francisco, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central, Southern Pacific, St. Louis & Southwestern and New Haven.

A notable feature of the decline, however, was the repetition of the dullness which the market has developed in recent weeks on the appearance of selling pressure. The volume shrivelled during the afternoon and sales for the day totaled only 1,849,000 shares.

There was some encouragement in the statement by the United States Steel corporation, which, in addition to announcing second quarter earnings equal to $3.02 a share, reported an expectation that the operations would improve during the remainder of this quarter and that volume would pick up in the last three months of the year.

New York, July 29. (AP)—Steel operations during the past week remained unchanged. The average being maintained around 57½ per cent as in the preceding week, Dow, Jones & Co., reports. Two weeks ago the industry was at 57 per cent.

The daily gold report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York today showed shipment of $1,000,000 to Canada and importation of $1,000,000 from Uruguay. The shipment to Canada was made by the Canadian Bank of Commerce and brought to $10,500,000 the total for the present movement to that country. The Guaranty Trust Co. of New York received the $1,000,000 from Uruguay.

International Superpower Corp. reporting for the first half of this year, showed total assets aggregating $11,509,124 as of June 30. The liquidating value of outstanding shares was $46.10 each as of July 26, compared with $43.34 June 30 last and $40.58 Dec. 31, 1929. The corporation published a complete list of its holdings which consisted chiefly of stocks of United Corp., Consolidated Gas Co. of New York, Electric Bond & Share Co., and North American Co.

Kansas City Southern railroad reported June net operating income of $310,615, compared with $356,243 in June last year.

Commercial Solvents Corp., is delivering in increasing volume to Dry-Ice Corp., of Peoria, Ill., carbon dioxide gas which was formerly a waste product, and when the deliveries reach the full volume available, the corporation expects to receive additional revenue of $500,000 annually. The gas formerly brought no return.

BY DONALD C. BOLLES,
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 29. (AP)—Trading in railroad bonds assumed large proportions today, and a mixed trend in this group was characteristic of the whole listed market.

While the best grade railroad and utilities were steady, sharp changes occurred among secondary issues, with the movement in several measures in points instead of fractions. There was heavy trading in convertible obligations of several carriers and in common with the rest of the stock privilege group they turned downward in sympathy with weakness of shares.

French 7½s climbed to a record high price to set the pace for the foreign bonds which displayed group strength. Expanded dealings in United States governments, however, were at moderate fractional concessions coincidental with the firming of time mony rates.

Little Competition.

The market had little competition from new offerings today. General Gas and Electric corporation is planning short term financing amounting to $50,000,000 through the sale of 4½ and 5 per cent serial gold notes due 1931-1935. Proceeds will be used for extensions and additions to the properties of subsidiaries and affiliated companies and acquisition of additional investments, it was announced.

The best grade rails showed marked resistance to the pressure against carriers, which apparently was partially influenced by the continued reports of decreases in earnings. Market leaders remained practically stationary, with changes of small consequence.

Few stocks privilege issues escaped the reactionary trend which set in the afternoon, and American Telephone 4½s, and Atchison 4½s dropped a point or more and St. Paul Adjustment 5s sold off 2 points.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

Chicago, July 29.—For the first time in a long while, corn in Chicago today brought more money per bushel than wheat. It is rare that any delivery of corn commands a premium over a similar delivery of wheat.

Depressed by big supplies, wheat values today fell below any price levels this season or for 16 years back, with corn advancing on account of drought news until checked toward the last by reports of scattered rains.

A nervous finish was witnessed both in wheat and corn, with wheat 1 3-8 to 1 7-8c a bushel lower than 24 hours previous. Corn closed at 3-8 to 1 3-8c net gain, oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25c.

Leadership as the price maker shifted repeatedly back and forward today between wheat and corn. During the early dealings and again in the final hour, the action of the wheat market had depressing effect on corn values, but throughout much of the remainder of the time the upward swing of corn quotations had a rallying influence on wheat.

Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board was quoted as declaring that corn crop conditions were the worst since the corn famine of 1901, when production of corn for the country as a whole amounted to but 16.7 bushels an acre the smallest yield ever known.

Oats went lower with wheat.

Provisions reflected upturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Sept. 86, 88 3-4; Dec. 91½ to 5-8, 94½ to 5-8; March 96½, 99½.

Business In Steel To Be Much Better

New York, —uly 29. (AP)—The United States Steel corporation believes the turning point in its business has been reached and anticipates an upturn during the balance of the year.

That was the substance of a brief statement from the finance committee today which accompanied the second quarterly statement showing net profit equal to $3.02 a share of common, compared to $3.44 in previous quarter and $6.68 a share in the June quarter of 1929, when a peace time record was made. The net income of $32,126,717, a decrease of $3,651,090 from the opening quarter of the year confirmed expectations in financial circles, where the consensus was that earnings would approximate $3.00 a share.

The terse statement of the finance committee on the business outlook read "at this date the manufacturing plants are operating 63 per cent of capacity. Indications in the industry point to an increase in this rate of operations during the balance of this quarter, with an improvement in volume during the last quarter."

The optimistic outlook was viewed in Wall Street as one which provided additional support to the rather widely held view that business has ebbed to about its lowest point in the current recession, with gradual improvement expected to follow.

CHICAGO POTATOES.

Chicago, July 29.—Potatoes 46, on track 219, total U. S. shipments 356; steady, trading just fair; Kansas and Missouri Sacked Irish Cobblers 1.50 to 1.65, ordinary 1.30 to 1.45; East Shore Virginia Barrel Irish Cobblers 3.00 to 3.35, mostly around 3.15.

UTILITIES ARE PUSHED ON CURB

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER,
(Associated Press Financial Writer.)

New York, July 29. (AP)—Bullish demonstrations in some of the utility stocks lifted the curb market list irregularly higher during most of today's trading, but reactionary tendencies gained ground late in the day, and gains and losses about balanced at the close. Business continued at a low ebb, the day's sales totaling 452,100 shares.

American Gas and Electric was a strong feature, rising 9 points to 140 in a large turnover for this moderately active issue. The year's high is 157. The upturn was accompanied by unconfirmable rumors of a merger with Commonwealth and Southern. Standard Power and Light gained about 2, influenced by revival of the old rumors of a merger with American Water Works. Utility and Industrial another Byllesby issue, was firm.

In the industrials, International Cigar Machinery jumped 9 points, and Aluminum Co. 4, but the trend was largely downward. In the aviation group, Aviation corp., lost about 4, and Western Air 2. Deere and National Title recorded new lows, the former losing 4. Save for Cosden, which rose 2, oils were largely sluggish. Cosden preferred jumped 22 points in a small turnover. Mines were helped a little by better copper sales, notably Newmont and Roan Antelope.

The dragon fly, contrary to popular belief, has no sting.

Hail Stribling as Timber for Heavyweight Title

WANT MATCH WITH CAMPOLO

Bout With Sharkey or Schmeling Is Also Being Considered

New York, July 29 (AP)—Young Bill Stribling, for years the "King of the Canebrakes", is headed back to the main highways of fistiana under a head of steam that whistles menacingly for Victorio Campolo, Jack Sharkey and lastly Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion at the moment.

The satisfying news that the Macon aviator had crumpled Phil Scott, the gangling Briton, in two rounds without a cry of foul being raised anywhere in the Wimbledon dog track arena in London, was hardly off the wires before the finest opportunity of Willie's long and bumpy career was shaping up in New York. Young Stribling has muffed golden chances in the past but this time the warning lights along the path to the heavyweight crown seem all to have turned green for him.

Frank Bruen, general manager at Madison Square Garden, wants to pit this ferocious 1930 edition of the best equipped heavyweight in the business against Victorio Campolo, the mauler of the Argentine, in one of the big ball parks here this September. Once past Campolo, a feat that should be ordinary for the youngster who knocked out Otto Von Porat and Scott in six minutes of fighting, Stribling can have the leading role in the third annual battle of the balmy breezes at Miami this winter, perhaps with Jack Sharkey again his opponent. The third match promised him is against Schmeling in a title tilt for which the German already has signed with Madison Square Garden for the summer of 1931. "Pa" Stribling discussed the situation with Bruen over the trans-Atlantic phone from London last night.

The possibility of Stribling again tackling Sharkey seems remote, however, for rather knowing information at the Garden indicates that the Boston sailorman, who outpointed Willie in the first struggle at Miami two years ago, has about decided that he will retire unless given a return engagement with Schmeling. Sharkey already has set a price of $100,000 on his services for a Campolo match this fall.

New Highway to Fair.

Marquette—To relieve the congested traffic situation on the road leading to the fairgrounds during fair week and when other events are being held there, the city commission yesterday voted to construct a new road to lead from the southern boundary of the property south to College avenue. The new road will follow the route of Lincoln avenue.

The commission's decision yesterday came after several weeks of consideration of the traffic problem, brought to the fore when the fireworks display was held at the fairgrounds July 6. It was at first planned to widen the present road by moving the street car tracks, but this was not considered feasible because it would not permit pedestrians the safety of the zone laying between the tracks and the fence.

Miniature Golf Tips

By Denny Shute

Whether Americans will become better golfers because of the thousands of miniature golf courses that have sprung up all over the country in the last year is hard to say. But certainly, if those who are beginning the game in this way and if those who are among its newer disciples go about it correctly, the country at least should have more good putters.

Putting is actually the most important part of the game of a good player, although it is usually the easiest part for the beginner. Just how good he is going to be usually is measured by how well he plays on the greens.

Examples prove this point. Bobby Jones is called the best putter in the game. It is significant that he also is the best player of us all. Golfers are still talking about his 40-yard famous putt on the last hole at Interlachen, which assured him the national open championship again.

Walter Hagen, when at the height of his glory, was given credit for being as great a putter as Jones. That he does not play as well as he used to because, for some reason or other, he has lost some of his putting touch.

DETROIT LOSES TO CLEVELAND

Four Run Lead in First Two Innings Quickly Vanishes, 14-7

Cleveland, July 29 (AP)—Detroit ran up a four run lead in the first two innings today but could not hold in the face of a savage Cleveland batting attack and lost its second game in a row here, 14 to 7.

Four bases on balls plus three hits off Guy Cantrell in the second inning produced seven runs. Averill made his tenth home run of the season and a double in that inning. In the next inning the Indians combined four hits and two walks off Charley Sullivan for five more runs. Eddie Morgan, Indian first baseman, got two doubles and three singles in five times up.

Fugazy Won't Sell Any More Stock In Huge Sports Arena

New York, July 29 (AP)—Humbert J. Fugazy, once the chief rival of the late Tex Rickard in the promotion of fights in New York, has agreed to sell no more stock in a $5,000,000 sports arena he planned for years but never built, it was disclosed today at the offices of assistant State Attorney General Watson Washburn.

Fugazy, who stepped into the fight game through the promotion of an Italian hospital charity fund show five years ago, staged matches for years at Ebbets Field and bid freely against Rickard for outstanding talent. He organized the Metropolitan Coliseum, Inc., became its president, and put on the market $8,000,000 worth of stock. A plot of land was acquired on 12th avenue between 44th and 45th street. About $180,000 worth of the stock was sold.

Today Fugazy, who stopped promoting fights about a year ago after a partnership with Jack Dempsey broke up, agreed to the issuance of a permanent injunction restraining him from selling any more of the stock. The formal court order was signed late in the afternoon by Supreme Court Justice Selah strong in Brooklyn. A mortgage was foreclosed recently on the land holdings of the company. No start ever was made on the building.

Mel Ott started the Giant attack with his 18th home run of the year in the second inning and Roettger hit another a few moments later. New York drove Ray Benge from the mound in the third, scoring four runs for a 7-1 lead. Benge was charged with the defeat.

Metzler Gets Hot With St. Louis

St. Louis, July 29 (AP)—Alex Metzler, the outfielder who couldn't hit more than .184 for the Chicago White Sox seems to have been a blessing in disguise for the St. Louis Browns.

When the St. Louis club recently took Metzler for the waiverprice, about all the fans expected was that he would reduce the Browns' team batting average from the already low figure of .260 to a still lower mark. Instead the White Sox castoff has added punch to the Browns' attack and his fielding has been good. Replacing Fred Schulte in center field, Metzler as a Brown has been banging the ball at a .482 clip and his home run in the ninth inning won a recent game from the Boston Red Sox.

Pittsburgh Trims Cardinals, 6 to 5

Pittsburgh, July 29 (AP)—After a series of one run rallies in the late innings that finally sent the St. Louis Cardinals out in front in the ninth, the Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind in their half of the final frame today to win the series opener when Lloyd Waner singled Suhr and Bool across. The score was 6 to 5.

In the third inning, Paul Waner hit for the circuit with Brother Lloyd on base. Grabowski was the losing pitcher.

"KITTEN BALL" FAD HITS ROCK

Grownups Are Having Fun Like Bunch of Kids at Diamond

Rock, Mich., July 29.—(Special)—Ponce de Leon might not have discovered the Fountain of Youth, but that doesn't matter. Some one invented the game of kitten ball, and from the looks of the excitement around this vicinity lately, the game will serve as a very capable substitute for the famed fountain. The kitten ball craze has struck this town and what a craze!

Anyone, who might have sauntered over to the athletic field on Monday night, would have thought that a grown up bunch of school kids were celebrating something or other, had they not known that a team from Lathrop was having a real battle with a team of married men from Rock.

That battle will go down in history. The local married men released their long pent-up emotions and scampered all over the lot to run off with a 43-15 victory over their rivals, from the nearby town. They just pasted the pill to all corners of the field for singles, doubles, triples, home runs or what have you? However the game had just been introduced at Lathrop a couple of days ago and, they, of course, were new to the game. But they haven't lost hope yet. They challenged the same outfit for another game here Wednesday evening. If the local married men can roll out of bed and limber up their weary, aching bones by Wednesday evening, look out for some more excitement.

The athletic field is open to local kitten ball enthusiasts on Monday and Wednesday nights and all the people of this vicinity are invited to come out and get in the game. There's no age, size, or width limit so just get permission from the Mrs. and come out on those two nights and be young once again.

Dazzy Fails In Final Frames and Boston Wins, 4-3

Boston, July 29 (AP)—For six innings today Dazzy Vance's speed had the Braves helpless, but the charm failed to last and they came from behind to drive the Dazzler from the mound in the eighth, scoring two runs to tie the score and finally defeated Brooklyn in the tenth inning 4 to 3. Ray Phelps was the losing pitcher as singles by Richbourg, Maranville and Sisler drove in the winning run with one out.

Wee Willie Sherdel pitched the distance for Boston and held the league leaders to eight hits, three by Babe Herman.

Score by innings:
Brooklyn – 100 101 000 0–3 8-1
Boston --- 000 000 120 1–4 13 2

"Greatest Landlord" Left Millions; Once Escanaba Merchant

Harry S. Black, who committed suicide in New York, Saturday, will be remembered by some of the older residents of Escanaba as a member of the firm of Black and Bell who conducted a dry goods store in the Daley building, 615 Ludington Street, now occupied by the Peninsula Tire Co.

Mr. Bell, who was actively in charge of the store, remained here during that time while Mr. Black lived in Chicago and visited here often in the interest of the firm. A New York dispatch says:

"Harry S. Black, "New York's greatest landlord," left the bulk of his estate, worth millions to his widow, Mrs. Isabella Black and a favorite nephew, George Allen Fuller.

Among the beneficiaries are Mary Daly, laundress at the Plaza Hotel, who receives $5,000, and Mrs. Alex Cruikshank, a niece, of Detroit, who receives $10,000.

Mrs. Black and Fuller are each to receive one-half of the residue of the estate in trust. If both die without children, their shares will revert to the estate, the income from which will be paid to authorized charities in New York and Chicago.

In 1882 Black settled in Chicago and entered the employ of a wholesale woolen house. For ten years he worked as a commercial traveler, selling his wares to retail merchants on the Pacific Coast. His next business move was to establish two banks in the state of Washington. Subsequently he became a partner in the firm of Black & Bell, merchants, of Menominee, Mich., who established a profitable branch store in Tekoe, Wash."

Former Escanaba Merchant Manages 3 Winners Stores

News of the advancement of I. B. Graydon, former Escanaba business man, to a position of superintendent of the Three Winners chain store system, has been received in this city. In his new connection, Mr. Graydon has full charge and management of six stores located at Houghton, Hancock, Calumet, Ontonagon, L'Anse and Iron River.

While at Escanaba, Mr. Graydon was advertising manager for the Boston store and afterward operated the business as Graydon's. Later he took a position with the T. K. Kelly sales system of Minneapolis. Tiring of this latter position because of the constant travel from state to state, he was prompted to accept a position with the Three Winners system as advertising man and display director. After a month with this concern, his knowledge of the store game was quickly noticed by the heads of the firm, and Mr. Graydon was promoted to superintendent. His duties now include direction of all advertising, direction of store layout and changes in types of display, personal direction, including promotion and demotion, general sales promotion and store improvement.

WILL PROMOTE BEACH SAFETY

Park Board Appeals for Cooperation From Bathing Public

Cooperation from the public in the promotion of safety at the Ludington Park bathing beach is asked by the Escanaba park board, which is anxious to do everything possible to safeguard the lives of all who patronize it.

The park board calls attention to the fact that there are many persons who indulge in dangerous practices while bathing or swimming, risking their lives and also causing others to emulate their poor conduct. When cautioned by the lifeguard, these persons have paid no attention to the advice, and have acted as if they were being robbed of their rightful privileges.

Every municipal beach in the country requires supervision and public compliance to certain regulations, the park board points out. Some grownups have been carrying youngsters to the rafts where they leave them without any attention. Much rowdyism on the rafts has been reported. The practice of pushing persons off into the water is dangerous because there is always the possibility that they will fall on children near the raft, causing them serious injury.

Long distance swimming, without the safe guard of having someone accompany in a rowboat, is another hazardous practice. The use of automobile inner tubes for keeping bathers afloat will not be allowed at the beach hereafter. At Ishpeming on Sunday, a man was drowned when the tire tube deflated, allowing him to sink under the surface of the water.

Soundings have been made along the Ludington park shore, outside of the safety swimming area, for dangerous holes. Two have been found already. Stakes will be driven and signs installed to denote these places.

The second raft will be removed from the supervised area, and a platform erected in its place in the interests of safety. The beach is being equipped with various fun-making equipment so that bathers will be drawn to the safe bathing place, rather than to isolated waters where protection of a lifeguard is not provided.

Gravedigger Dies; Foul Play Hinted

William Ozomick, brother of Mrs. Charles Hartwick of St. Jacques died at Drummond Island Sunday during an alleged brawl and officers of that community are investigating the case to determine whether he died from the effects of liquor which it is claimed was sold to him by Hans Nevenen or whether he met foul play at the hands of companions.

Ozomick's death occurred shortly after he had dug the grave for a woman claimed to be 114 years old.

Drummond Island—After digging a grave for Mrs. Nicholas Moshie, 114 year old Indian woman, William Ozomick, 28, died here at 1 p. m., Sunday. The cause of death has not yet been determined, although Hans Nevenen was taken to the Sault last night in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Matt Shaw. He will be held pending the analysis of a sample of moonshine whiskey, claimed to have been sold to Ozomick by Nevenen.

The belief is also held that foul play may have led to Ozomick's death, as he fell to the ground during a drunken brawl. Preliminary questioning of relatives and witnesses shed no light on the latter theory. Relatives called Supervisor Floyd Seaman shortly after Ozomick's death, and wanted "all the officers he could get."

According to friends and relatives, Ozomick with several others had been digging a grave. After the work was finished, he with his companions returned to the Moshie home, six miles east of the ferry landing, and were waiting for the funeral services to begin. A group of men, among them Ozomick, his two brothers, Peter and John, Frank Stevenson, James McGowan, William Bushie and John Shoman, were near the house. Witnesses said that John Shoman was drunk and was using abusive language in the presence of the women, and the rest of the group were endeavoring to put him in a car. A shuffle ensued, during which Ozomick fell to the ground, dead. His two brothers say that no blows were struck.
